

City Guide

Diagrams to Visiting Hours

180 diagrams · atlas · readings

Hulki Okan Tabak

Portrait edition · September 2026

City Guide

English original. Also available in Turkish as Şehir Rehberi, an AI translation prepared and revised under the author's direction.

Copyright © 2026 Hulki Okan Tabak.
Cover photograph © Hulki Okan Tabak.

Portrait edition · September 2026

A love of nature keeps no factories busy.

Aldous Huxley

Brave New World, Chapter II

What this guide holds

A companion to the completed English text

The edition

This guide follows the final English Revision 30: 32,442 story words in five parts. The book has 59 numbered stories and an unnumbered title story. That final work keeps its unnumbered status here; its three figures are 178-180. Read a story before its figures: endings are discussed. The introduction and intervals also contain cross-story spoilers.

Three views of each story

The 180 figures examine amounts, bodies beside records, possessions changing hands and choices becoming another person's obligation. They cannot replace cadence, desire or hesitation. Three reading routes: figures after each story; an interval after every ten; the atlas and references after the whole book. The contents link all three routes.

English and Turkish

The two English layouts use the same diagram content. Portrait pages are composed vertically; they are not reduced landscape pages. The Turkish guide translates this English companion and keeps the same figure identifiers, numbers, relations and uncertainties. It does not constitute a new Turkish translation of the storybook.

Credits

Visiting Hours is by Hulki Okan Tabak. The manuscript developed with Claude and other language models under his direction; the independent English revision and this guide were prepared with Codex. The guide's readings are editorial interpretations, not testimony from the literary writers whose craft informed the editing.

A diagram is also a reading

What the lines do, and where they stop

Amounts

A bar compares quantities only when the unit is shared. A fee for recording two spoken words is not two retained words toward a crossing. A count of households is not a count of voters. Calculated gaps are labeled as calculations; they are not additional figures spoken by a character.

Arrows and alignments

A sequence follows an action or its telling. A network shows a stated relation, not an unseen command structure. Dashed lines mark reported, incomplete, disputed or interpretive connections. Parallel columns do not appoint a final account. Node letters are diagram labels. Color is emphasis only: it marks no truth, authority, faction, danger or canonical status.

A divided authority

The city has departments, employees, competing instructions and failures. A statement issued by an Office, printed in an invitation or voiced by an altered companion belongs to that source. It is not automatically a law governing every scene. A diagram can show a claim and its consequence without making the claim true.

Differences kept in view

The loan slip can reverse the lender and borrower. The hotel remark can be remembered at a door and in a bed. A refused appointment can become a requested one on a receipt. These differences remain beside the scenes that produce them. Resolving them would alter the book this guide accompanies.

The shape of the book

Five literary parts; six intervals in this companion

The five parts

Registration contains Stories 1-12; The Rate, 13-26; Continuation, 27-39; Corrections, 40-52; Visiting Hours, 53-59 and the unnumbered title story. The registration form precedes them; the separate Duration of stay field follows the final story. The guide's six intervals do not create a new six-part order.

Names and likenesses

Among those named independently of The Naming are Meral, Sava, Idris, Esen, Cem, Nuri, Nadir, Rauf, Lida and Suna. Others remain known by a room, an occupation or a ticket. The Naming proposes and withdraws names; its proposals do not settle identities elsewhere. A returning object or animal can connect scenes without identifying everyone beside it.

What remains open

The far side, the works' purpose, the cost of the cat's speech, the silenced hour and the final visitor's identity are not supplied here. Nor is the opposition assigned one leader or one moral character. Faith can bring food, courage or company without resolving the supernatural.

The untranslated page

Story 13 remains in Esperanto. Its diagrams examine form, repeated elements and its place in the collection. They do not translate its sentences into English or Turkish. The guide can point toward that page without claiming to remove the reader's distance from it.

Sixty stories, 180 figures 1/4

Select a story to open its first figure. The numbers at right identify its three figures. Select CITY GUIDE at the top of any page to return here.

01 Many Happy Returns	001-003
02 Nearby	004-006
03 The Grace Period	007-009
04 Instructions for the First Hour	010-012
05 Cheap Words	013-015
06 Kept	016-018
07 The One Who Would Not Clear	019-021
08 Final Position	022-024
09 Present	025-027
10 Crowd, Moved	028-030
11 The Tank	031-033
12 Reconciliation	034-036
13 Sub la Kuranta Akvo	037-039
14 Export	040-042
15 The Rate	043-045

Sixty stories, 180 figures 2/4

Select a story to open its first figure. The numbers at right identify its three figures. Select CITY GUIDE at the top of any page to return here.

16 Therefore	046-048
17 The Works	049-051
18 Effects	052-054
19 Walking the Ground	055-057
20 Stimulus	058-060
21 Sale 41	061-063
22 Kindly Confirm	064-066
23 Room Four	067-069
24 Standing Order	070-072
25 The Wing	073-075
26 Order Was Restored	076-078
27 Local Mode	079-081
28 What I Have Receipts For	082-084
29 The First One First	085-087
30 Retention	088-090

Sixty stories, 180 figures 3/4

Select a story to open its first figure. The numbers at right identify its three figures. Select CITY GUIDE at the top of any page to return here.

31 Next Year	091-093
32 A Place Is Held	094-096
33 Enough	097-099
34 The Standard Questions	100-102
35 Good Crossing	103-105
36 Minutes	106-108
37 Within Boundaries	109-111
38 A Companion for New Arrivals	112-114
39 The Turn on the Half-Landing	115-117
40 For Corrections Only	118-120
41 Nothing Worth Keeping	121-123
42 Errata	124-126
43 Four Minutes	127-129
44 Press Nine	130-132
45 The Reserve	133-135

Sixty stories, 180 figures 4/4

Select a story to open its first figure. The numbers at right identify its three figures. Select CITY GUIDE at the top of any page to return here.

46 Situations Vacant	136-138
47 Aired Quarterly	139-141
48 The Other Listener	142-144
49 The Standard Vows	145-147
50 The Column	148-150
51 The Observance	151-153
52 The Pool	154-156
53 Service Improvement	157-159
54 The Last Word	160-162
55 The Well	163-165
56 The Naming	166-168
57 Room-Tone	169-171
58 Not Given	172-174
59 The Liminal	175-177
Final Visiting Hours	178-180

Reading intervals: 39 70 101 132 163 194

Atlas: 195-198

Persons, places, systems: 199-206

The chairs the story actually counts

Three reported moments; these are not points on a complete annual series.

Moment	At the table / loan	On the balcony
First birthday shown	11 borrowed chairs; 10 guests	No opening count supplied
Later parties	No table count supplied	3 chairs, then 5
Last party	1 chair: his	Full rows, uncounted

The balcony accumulates chairs, but no conserved total or count for every party is supplied.

001

Story begins p. 7

A room with several kinds of attendance

A relational map of particular presences, not a complete guest census.

A > B: return and refusal / A > C: chair and watch remain / A > D: attendance by her seat / A > E: repeated gesture / A > F: recipe becomes a file

Physical absence and continued attendance do not share one meaning; the licensed friend's return can be refused. 002

The greeting changes; the ring returns

Narrative order, with the story's stated delays preserved.

Seventh birthday

A two-note bell admits guests.

Another ring

The friend returns from a job abroad; the boy's voice has changed.

The voice replaces the bell

It names each guest half a second before the ring.

The friend licensed back

His name returns; his laugh arrives half a second late.

Repeated rings

Three consecutive rings compress passing years.

Last line

The doorbell rings again; no visitor is identified.

The final ring supplies another arrival signal without identifying a visitor or ending the cycle.

003

Story begins p. 7

A routine centered on the middle station

Places connected by his routine; this is not a measured map.

A > B: room above / A > C: working view / A > D: Sunday routine / D > E: Sunday routine / A > F: cellist avoids platform

The text locates the room over the station; it does not put every destination within sight of the cable. 004

The annual account cannot settle memory

Different units and kinds of evidence remain separate.

Evidence	Reported amount or fact	What remains uncertain
Annual service account	11 names; 4.5 stars	Which entries account for the mismatch
His recollection	9 bodies	What he has forgotten or failed to recognize
Two entries	Photographs in his own room	He cannot place a face above the blanket
Pillowcases	He owns the set he did not recognize	Why possession and memory differ
Healed bite	Matches none of the 11 names	Whose encounter left it

Eleven names and nine remembered bodies disagree; the text does not identify every discrepancy or its cause.

005

Story begins p. 11

Twelve seconds and an unclosed gesture

Narrative sequence of the final encounter; his exact vantage is not specified.

Meeting at the loop

The cars hold 12 seconds of level glass.

A hand in the down car

A palm rises against the glass.

His answering hand

He raises it without seeing whose hand he answers.

Cars separate

His hand remains raised.

Room above

The second plate remains visible from the door.

The raised hand has no identified owner. Keeping his hand raised is observable; mutual recognition is not.

006

Story begins p. 11

The clocks as reported

Wall time, elapsed age and registration age are not converted into one clock.

Clock or record	Reported value	Associated event
Elapsed age	11 hours	Mother in the third bed
Wall clock	04:30	Desk man arrives
Elapsed age	11 hours 40	Word spoken; time retained on the record
Wall clock	04:52	Account opens
Closing age statement	11 hours old; 8 minutes registered	The child already holds the unpaid word
Policy threshold	12 hours from first breath	No-charge interval ends; fee doubles

The reported times do not form a clean derived chronology; no birth time or corrected age is supplied here.

007

Story begins p. 13

What care can hold in place

Three helpers and the registration process operate within different limits.

Action		Limit that remains
Midwife	Tea, clean cloth, prayer knots and a witness signature	Her name stays beside the account
Meral	Keeps the printer beside the empty tag	Her workload request remains unsigned
Desk man	Explains and prints the hardship schedule	The screen requires admission for an occupied bed
Registration	Cot, warmth and a reading become available	Use of the grace period stays on the file

Care secures material help and registration, while neither the workload nor the lasting file note is erased.

008

A word in the child; a name on the account

Two acts occur close together without becoming the same transaction.

	Word given to the child	Name entered for the account
Utterance	Said twice into his ear	A short name unfamiliar to the midwife
Mother's distinction	Reserved for later	She asks for it to be written down
Immediate consequence	He has the word; nobody has been paid for it	Account opens; tag closes around his ankle
Continuing record	No entry for this word is shown	Registration time travels with him

The text distinguishes the private word from the registered name; it does not certify that nothing can ever record the word.

009

Three quantities, three different limits

Attempt count, source material and thumb viability are not interchangeable.

Constraint	Quantity	Status
Phone attempts	5 available; 2 used	3 remaining, calculated as 5 - 2
Continuation material	90 days	Messages, walks, voice notes and small hours
Thumb viability	1 day, maybe 2	An estimate the applicant will recall at the funeral

Three attempts remain by subtraction at instruction 5; their later use and a successful total are not narrated.

010

Story begins p. 15

The hand serves incompatible purposes

The same contact carries intimacy, access and a final act of replacement.

	Intimate or bodily act	Procedural use or limit
Holding the hand	A contact with a prior personal history	Warmth keeps the sensor usable
Thumb against the neck	A body supplies warmth	Another authentication attempt
Ninety days of material	A record of his private life	The application cannot ask him
Returning the hand	Placed as it was found	Access has not supplied his consent

This comparison describes uses of the hand; it does not assign each instruction one exclusive beneficiary.

Nine, the gap, and the unnamed place

The final numbered positions preserve an interruption and an unresolved referent.

The final instructions leave the place and relationship unnamed. The pronoun and the empty tenth item remain as written.

012

Story begins p. 15

Household retention against the rate

All three bars use words of proven retention; differences are calculations.

words of proven retention

Household held words

Distribution among three people is not supplied

Current rate

Calculated shortfall: $240 - 206 = 34$ words

New-year rate

Calculated shortfall: $300 - 206 = 94$ words

The totals establish a household shortfall. They do not allocate the 206 words among the two adults and child.

013

Story begins p. 16

Taught is not the same as saved

Three language practices use different accounts of value.

Practice	What is counted or used	What does not follow
Dog story	Words she can afford to lose	Cheapness does not make them immune to loss
Tin and monthly recitation	9 saved words; tenth conditional	The hoped-for tenth is not yet acquired
Private word under the tap	One utterance; 9 still	Speaking it does not add a tenth
School note	Dear words taught; figure unspecified	Vocabulary is not the saved retention total

The school note supplies no printed number in the story. It goes into the tin without becoming proof of additional saved words.

A device becomes a model of storytelling

A causal chain stated by the story, with the mother's deliberate accommodation.

01 The aging block

Drops the last word of anything longer than a sentence

02 The mother's adaptation

Keeps her sentences short

03 The boy's model

Thinks this is how stories go

1 > 2: she accommodates the limit / 2 > 3: form becomes familiar

The block is nine years old; the child's age is not given. The story supplies no removal count.

015

Story begins p. 16

A diary written toward its reader

Selected moments in the order presented, without invented week intervals.

Friday

E. opens the diary; the diarist keeps the entry short.

Later Tuesday

Underlinings begin; the diarist writes toward them.

Saturday

An intimate memory receives a long entry.

Wednesday

The diarist reports missing pages for the fourth time.

Last Sunday

E. reads without underlining; the diarist keeps the entry short.

The diary reacts to E.'s reading; this does not settle who is continued or who controls the missing pages.

016

Story begins p. 17

The calendar names less than it withholds

Reported dates and markers are compared with what they cannot date.

Visible marker

What it establishes

What it does not establish

Recurring Thursday

Renewal recurs in the diary

A numbered uninterrupted week series

Second week of June

The planned visit occurs

A date for every preceding entry

Two dash-led passages

The text resumes into an ongoing sentence

Two independently dated deletions

Fourth reported occasion

The diarist reports pages missing again

What every removed page contained

There is no reliable week count. Mid-sentence openings make gaps visible without proving the date or cause of each removal.

017

Story begins p. 17

Reading, permission and the closed cover

The diary's stated circulation differs from the intimacy its entries pursue.

Intimate use		Service permission or withheld act
Underlining	E. marks bread, gulls and the collar	The diarist redirects later writing toward those marks
Journal	Exact memories of her body remain on the page	Entries may be summarized for service improvement
Circulation	E. reads the book	Aggregate material may reach the counterparty
At the lake	The diarist keeps the morning by not photographing E.	The refusal to photograph is itself written
Closed cover	Her palm holds the book shut	The account of the gesture remains inside it

The notice permits summarizing and aggregate disclosure. It does not prove that a particular missing page was removed under that permission.

The voice fails, then returns

The story's stated sequence and intervals; the mechanism is not diagnosed.

Eleven days of silence follow the standard phrases. Silence is not proof of a completed wipe.

019

Story begins p. 19

Two message systems, one speaker's comparison

The historical claims belong to the bird; the final delivery is observed by the woman.

	The bird's claimed relays	The city in this scene
Carriers	Riders, horses and fixed distances	Small machines carry a message up the stair street
Obligation	The bird claims to have made relays compulsory	No equivalent city founding act is shown
Delivery	It values a message arriving through indifferent carriers	A message arrives and is signed for
Basis of the comparison	Its reported memory and claim of hearing the walls	The woman's view of the final delivery

The comparison does not establish superior speed, distance or immortality, and it does not identify the speaker.

020

Story begins p. 19

A fault changes price, not legal standing

Quoted price adjustments do not establish a common resale base.

Moment	Value or action	Limit
Purchase	40% discount	Scuff and uncleared personality
Later listing	40% premium for a personality that will not clear	No common base price is supplied
Her decision	Holds the bird; does not sell	Forearm tightens; two fingers open late
Transfer request	Asks to attach it to the household file	Reply denies continuation and invokes the void owner's property

The discount and premium cannot be used to calculate her profit. The refusal rests on the bird's non-person status and the last owner's void status.

021

Story begins p. 19

The promised extension has no force

Two disagreements place a person's account beside a document or device.

	Personal account or intervention	Document or device response
Hand service	The fitter says the notice is wrong and stamps EXTENDED	His phone rejects the stamp
Book loan	Narration calls it his copy, previously lent	The loan slip names him as borrower
Persistence	She keeps trying the stamp	The shutdown still occurs at midnight

The guide keeps both versions of the loan in view. It does not correct the slip or decide that the fitter knowingly lies.

Eleven years enter a one-field ending

Different records preserve different parts of the same hand.

Record	What it contains	What it does not settle
Past injury	Flesh hand lost at age 42	A calendar date
Nightly reporting	11 years; grip, tremor and temperature	An exact number of nights
Domestic change	Month he stopped opening jars for two	Whom or what he lost
OPEN	Technician attendance required	Price or perpetual billing
CLOSED	No further visit required; small credit	The meaning of the hand holding him

Eleven years cannot be converted into an exact night count here. The stopped jar-opening does not identify the household loss.

023

A shutdown made into a hold

Selected actions on the last evening and their later administrative recognition.

Last evening

- He buttons, unbuttons and starts again; peels the orange.

Two signatures

- He writes once with each hand; the names agree.

The field

- He selects CLOSED.

His chosen position

- He puts the living hand inside the mechanical one.

Midnight to morning

- The last charge closes the fingers gently; he stays.

Second week

- The counterparty thanks him and encloses a small credit.

His use of CLOSED exceeds the field's service calculation, without restoring power or preventing the shutdown.

024

Story begins p. 21

A name outlasts renewal

Reported stages only; the opening school year is not numbered.

Before renewals stop

At nine her name is answered; the desk card renews separately on Thursdays.

Year of long division

Renewals stop.

One further term

The head retains the unpaid name; the teacher still reads it.

Following year

The teacher leaves without explaining.

Replacement

A different name occupies the seat.

Twenty years later

The reunion reads the old paper register.

The teacher leaves without giving a reason. The timeline records sequence, not a proved explanation for her departure.

025

Story begins p. 22

Fee, name and funding are separate entries

The story reports three linked records without identifying who stopped payment.

Entry	What continues	What the figure cannot infer
-------	----------------	------------------------------

Desk fee	Listed between milk and swimming during renewal	A monthly schedule or reason payment stops
----------	---	--

Name on the roll	Retained one unpaid term	The head's exclusive motive
------------------	--------------------------	-----------------------------

Headcount and funding	Both hold while the name remains	That the child's presence costs nothing
-----------------------	----------------------------------	---

Old paper register	Survives to the reunion outside funding's record	That it restores the child
--------------------	--	----------------------------

Keeping the name preserves funding for one term. Whether that act is kindness, expedience or both remains open.

026

Story begins p. 22

A photograph moves; a hand remembers

Two bodily or visual disturbances occur without remembered decisions.

School photograph

Reunion table

Trigger

The autumn photograph has changed by spring

The fourth name is reached

Visible change

The neighboring children have moved apart

The former neighbor's hand lies flat

Remembered decision

Neither child remembers moving

She did not decide to put her hand there

The child at the center

Eight years old as printed

The answering silence is eight years old

The comparison joins two unchosen changes; it does not explain how the photograph alters or diagnose the woman's gesture.

027

Story begins p. 22

Five bookings, different records

Only the charges and classifications actually supplied are shown.

Booking	What the unit does	Record supplied
Wedding at nine	Coordinates the first dance	No invoice basis stated
School at noon	Changes pitch and speed for the resisting boy	Songs licensed
Fish-market wake	Plays or rests for 4 quiet minutes	One selection, performed
Tank in the evening	Plays the unlicensed six-step tune	4 minutes: anomaly, recurring
Square at dawn	Moves the crowd; square empty in 20 minutes	One line: crowd, moved

The wake is invoiced as a performance and the square as an outcome; the other bookings lack a stated invoice basis.

028

Story begins p. 23

Who gets time to speak

The people dispute access before and during the unit's work.

Claim on attention		Response
At the wake	A mourner raises a paid request while the daughter speaks	The widow lowers his hand; the daughter finishes
At the banner	A woman removes OURS from the demand	The holders keep the remaining strip aloft
At the megaphone	The same woman holds out her hand	Its holder passes it to the man behind her
At the unit's case	A man reaches it and repeats a mouth movement	The handler keeps his wax in and pulls the case away

The altered banner and denied megaphone show contested access, not a unified organization or doctrine.

029

Story begins p. 23

The feet learn behind the stoppers

A chain of bodily reception in the Tank and its later audible trace.

01 The unlicensed tune

Six descending steps in the Tank

02 Feet on the stone

His feet learn what he cannot hear

03 Stoppers removed at dawn

The ordinary city returns to his ears

04 The walk through the square

He hums six steps down

1 > 2: felt through the floor / 2 > 3: later in the narrative / 3 > 4: later in the narrative

His hearing is blocked, not his susceptibility. The tune's later humming does not establish ownership or freedom from it.

030

Story begins p. 23

After Stories 1-10

A place in the count

What the numbers leave out

A birthday table, a record of introductions, a first account and a household tin put arithmetic next to a body. The numbers stay legible while what they account for changes. Nearby's eleven recorded people do not reconcile with the nine he remembers; the twelve seconds at the passing cars cannot identify the hand.

Help enters the arrangement

A midwife's prayer knots help her return to the bed. A clinic stamp cannot extend the hand's service. Kept lets attention alter the writing itself. These scenes do not share one result. Reading them together makes the small differences in what people can do more visible.

The band and the body separate

Track whose band each person wears, not an invented balance in money.

	On his body	On her body
Before the crush	His band turns bright on the second round	No opening balance is stated
After the crush	Her dark band, narrow enough to bite	His bright band, carrying his debt
Spending	He uses her balance for expensive hours	She wears his lack of money
Selection	The room selects her band on him	Her bodily response interrupts his reach
Dawn	Bands returned	Bands returned

The band exchange redistributes spending access. It does not establish equal agreement to sell the night's recording.

031

Touch is not one continuous permission

The story places three encounters together without making their consent equivalent.

Encounter

His action

Her response

Old water stairs

Asks at her hips

Answers

Free glass for the recorded night

Reaches for the drink

Closes a hand on his wrist; he uses the other hand

Watching their recorded intimacy

Finds her waistband with his thumb

Catches it there

Later queue

Returns to the entrance

They both pay to enter again

The later stopping gestures trouble the shared return to the club; the diagram does not decide her final motives.

032

Story begins p. 25

A room that plays, records and gives water

Relations within the Tank; spatial placements are schematic, not to scale.

A > B: entry control / A > C: stairs behind column 3 / A > D: recording transaction / D > E: licensed to keep and show / D > F: the barman's action

The room's transactions coexist with a small act of care; neither the saucer nor the stairs is assigned an invented tariff.

033

Story begins p. 25

Agreement across different objects

P and C use related words for different work; their recorded agreement does not remove the mismatch.

Premises agent P		Continuity agent C
Empty	Seeks an unoccupied room for cleaning	Prepares to empty the cabinet
Late	Reports a recurring late booking	Flags the late client's hosted service
Approved	Authorizes cleaning	Authorizes a factory-state installation
Retention	Asks about anything requiring retention	Reports no items or forwarding address; registered party deceased.

The document reports agreement; its own exchanges preserve the difference between an empty room and an erased cabinet.

034

The interruption that does not stop the reset

The caretaker changes the work schedule briefly; reported times are kept exact.

The plug is restored after staff charges are threatened. The delay request remains open after the works record reports the reset.

035

Story begins p. 27

What survives the agreed work

Objects, service and bookings have different outcomes.

Item or record	Reported outcome	Unresolved remainder
Works record	Factory state restored; local media not retained	The later occupant and booking do not explain what continues
Book and place	Book returned; a strip torn from the delay request keeps her place	Request remains open
Occupancy	1 occupant for 58 minutes; lights switch off twice	The room also reads empty
Voucher	60 minutes issued; returned each cycle	The marking hand is unrecognized
Recurring booking	Renews in the following cycle	No service request came from inside

The works record, occupied room and self-renewing booking remain side by side. What, exactly, continues? The voucher's marking hand remains unidentified.

036

Story begins p. 27

Three paragraphs, measured without a gloss

Counts use whitespace-delimited words in this edition.

whitespace-delimited words

Paragraph 1

First paragraph

Paragraph 2

Second paragraph

Paragraph 3

Third paragraph

The total is 195 words, calculated as $84 + 67 + 44$. Paragraph length falls; that shape is not an English rendering.

037

Story begins p. 30

Three later echoes to follow

Read these figure sets alongside the Esperanto page; no line is translated.

A > B: recurring words and gestures / A > C: recurring words and gestures / A > D: a later phrase

The later scenes vary what returns. Similar words and gestures do not make the scenes identical or settle every identity.

038

Story begins p. 30

Three verified routes of recurrence

Story titles identify counterparts; the Esperanto text remains untranslated.

A > B: household practice / A > C: rate sequence / A > D: weather recurrence

This is a selected reference map, not a census of every connection. No line is restated in English.

039

What can cross this border

The counter's stated distinctions apply to this export case.

What is carried or retained	Stated condition	Result
Continuation license	Foreign premises cannot be registered	No responding host abroad
Retained recording	Export duty exceeds twice the flight price	A file that plays
Unexported recordings	Estate retains them for the statutory period	No duration is specified here
Paid local license	Continues to the paid month's end	Her departure does not stop the license; it runs until the paid month ends.
Glasses case	Carried in a tin, wrapped in a sock	Travels free; hinge remains stiff

Paying export duty buys playback without an answering presence. The book does not establish this as the only living departure.

040

Story begins p. 31

The paperback falls between classifications

A local disagreement at neighboring counters, followed by the export clerk's intervention.

01 Mother's annotated paperback

Kept behind the receipts

02 Two descriptions

Personal material versus a used book

03 The screen's box

PERSONAL RECORDINGS returns after being closed

04 The clerk's response

Turns the screen away; tells her to keep the book in her hand

1 > 2: classification disputed / 2 > 3: screen offers a category / 3 > 4: limited intervention

The clerk helps without settling the book's official classification or proving that the system accepts his decision.

041

Story begins p. 31

The departure carries several kinds of keeping

Objects remain materially distinct from the licensed continuation.

Object carried or placed		Action and limit
Painted tin	Takes the license's former place on the shelf	Later carries the glasses case
Final receipt	Travels in the folder's passport position	Pays for a month spent abroad
Aunt's red thread	Untied and taken toward the bin	Kept in her pocket
Glasses case	Wrapped in a sock in the tin	Its stiff hinge is the same difficulty her mother knew

Keeping the aunt's thread records an unresolved attachment, not belief in a proven protective mechanism.

042

Story begins p. 31

The fare's three stated word totals

These bars compare word-denominated fares; the older two-coin fare is a different unit.

words of proven retention

Last year

First stated word-denominated level

Current rate

Calculated increase: $240 - 200 = 40$

Year's last day

Calculated increase: $300 - 240 = 60$

The increases are calculated differences: 40 then 60 words. The earlier rates across the eleven years cannot be derived from these three levels.

043

Story begins p. 33

Retention is not the receipt history

Observed counts occupy distinct stages; the lost words are not explained.

The widow completes her husband's audited crossing. Her own entry into the water has a different, unresolved status.

044

Story begins p. 33

Published, unwritten and unbuyable

Three arrangements coexist; a fourth price remains undenominated.

Arrangement	Stated rule or practice	Boundary
Teaching	1 word per dawn; more washes out by noon	Retention remains the family's risk
Lending circle	11 participants; return before the ramp	Neither forbidden nor mentioned
Repeated loans	No same word twice in a season	An internal practice, not a published permission
Name charge	One hundred	Denomination not stated
Banned words	The list cannot be bought	The seller is struck from the register, then shot

Lending occupies an unmentioned part of the schedule. The name charge cannot safely be converted into cash or retained words.

045

Story begins p. 33

Four reported stair counts

All bars are reported counts, not independent measurements of the staircase.

reported stairs

Narrator's first count

While counting down

Narrator's repeated count

Does not match his first count

His hands

A bodily count as narrated

His son going up

Not designated the correct count

No stair count is certified as correct. His separate claim, "I have three hands," remains outside this stair comparison.

046

Story begins p. 34

One answer, two meanings

The clerk records refusal; the speaker continues his claim about the account.

	Meaning selected by the clerk	Meaning repeated by the narrator
Question in focus	Do you accept?	Will my account ever close?
The answer no	He does not accept	His account will not close
Action	The clerk selects the first no	He keeps saying the second
Visible continuation	His mother's mouth moves	No agreement over the answer is shown

The screen accepts a meaning the speaker disputes. This is a conflict over an answer, not proof of a universal account law.

Where the attempted proof stops following

The narrator's final reasoning keeps returning to its claimed conclusion.

1 > 2: asserted by the narrator / 2 > 3: adds a sentence / 3 > 4: invalid inference / 4 > 5: claimed conclusion

A longer true description does not refute a shortest one. The last inference fails formally; why does the speaker need it to follow?

048

Story begins p. 34

Records beside a counted height

Compare the records printed in this story.

Record or observation	Floor count	Immediate consequence
Lift sheet	19	Names the rescue unauthorized
Measures card	23	Engineer turns it face down; Sava turns it back
Crew lift log	23	Driver records the floor in the unpaid shared log
Fence notice	19	Unchanged when he leaves
Driver's evening count	23 lit floors	He counts again

The count matters because the cage must rise beyond 19 to reach the men; competing documents do not make their rescue merely notional.

A height dispute becomes a rescue cost

Actions follow narrative order; the deduction is the engineer's recorded penalty.

01 The engineer's denial

Nobody above 19, despite the voice over the radio

02 Finger against the glass

He points above the cage and says it is too low

03 The cage raised

Three men come down, one with an injured foot

04 Adverse lift sheet

19; unauthorized lift; 3 hours' pay deducted

05 The driver signs

The engineer acknowledges descent, not the disputed height

1 > 2: driver demands a location / 2 > 3: driver raises the cage / 3 > 4: engineer records penalty / 4 > 5: signature follows

Three men return to the ground, while the driver loses three hours' pay. The rescue does not force the record to acknowledge its height.

050

Story begins p. 36

Height is defended; pay is left unwitnessed

Sava contests one jurisdiction and does not take up the driver's next request.

	Official or professional act	Limit of the act
Engineer	Claims attendance and records 19	Saw the cage return but refuses the driver's account
Sava	Asserts height and restores his 23 card face up	Does not witness the pay deduction
Driver	Adds 23 to the workers' log	Still signs the adverse sheet
Workers' log	Carries years of floors in their own hands	No protection from amendment or reprisal is guaranteed

A competing card is limited help. Sava's motives for withholding witness remain unstated.

The two prospective outcomes of one signature

The junior and the officer describe this case; the fare comes from the existing account.

If he confirms the match

If he voids the match

Dead brother

The name goes with the body

Unidentified; sent to the northern wall

Fare

From the living officer's existing account

The officer retains the account

Living officer

Takes his brother's place below the reading

Keeps name and desk; account has a gray margin

Separate retention field

4 words per year while the file remains open

No alternate fee outcome is specified

Registration alone is not a universal promise of passage. The fare amount is unstated; four words a year concerns the retention box.

052

Story begins p. 38

Recognition does not settle the registry winter

The records and the officer's bodily recognitions disagree without a full childhood account.

	What the record presents	What the officer recognizes
Identity card	The drowned body bears the officer's name	He knows his brother's hands
Childhood record	One name continues after the registry visit	Two boys went in; the household came home fewer
Specimen signature	Letters he has copied for 50 years	They were written by the drowned fingers
Final confirmation	Reader files under the name it finds	He writes in his own previously unfiled hand

Two boys and one continuing name do not establish every detail of the substitution or prove that the register never erred.

The watch goes; the dictionary stays

The final handling of two effects, followed by a gesture without its object.

01 Effects released for the crossing

One item may be retained against error

02 Dictionary retained

Still swollen shut; nothing entered under REMARKS

03 Watch fastened to the brother

The officer punches a new strap hole and closes the buckle

04 Watch leaves wound

It goes on the wrist to which it was promised

05 Officer at the desk

He winds a watch that is no longer there

1 > 2: one item stays / 1 > 3: watch goes with the body / 3 > 4: crossing / 4 > 5: gesture persists afterward

The record retains the dictionary, while the officer's wrist keeps an action. Neither preservation opens the unreadable book.

054

Story begins p. 38

The plate, the stone and her decision

Selected discrepancies have different filing outcomes.

Location	Plate / stone relation	Her response
40 / 12	Devoted father and fish trade / a good man on the water	Corresponding
40 / 19	Beloved wife of / her own woman	Sentiment, family-supplied
41 / 8	Silent plate / promise of Thursday visits	Corresponding; standing marks remain
42 / 1	Name and trade / paid for 9 crossings	Marks twice; tablet accepts once
42 / 6	Taken from us / TAKEN	Nothing filed
43 / 11	Repeated restart / warning about the one underneath	Corresponding; stone predates plate by 11 years

Granite is not automatically certified as truer. Her filing choices include discretion, withholding and a failed second mark.

055

Story begins p. 40

Her mother's memorial has two wordings

Remembered choice, renewal and blank stone stay distinct.

	Her remembered or bodily account	Recorded surface
Chosen sentence	She remembers easier and calls it true	The renewal says warmer
Six years	She has not chosen the line to cut	Granite remains blank
Avoided row	Her heels dig in; she does not walk it	Deferred, access: a category for a locked gate
Payment	The debit continues each month	It buys the sentence she could afford instead

The guide keeps easier and warmer in view. It does not select a correct original or identify a change mechanism.

Work, company and an uncompleted alternative

Reported totals and final actions do not guarantee a future inscription.

Measure or act	Given in the story	Limit
Work completed / remaining	629 examined; 311 left; 940 total	629 + 311 = 940, a calculated check

Discrepancies	106 in 629 examined	Does not certify each judgment
---------------	---------------------	--------------------------------

Office average	280	Comparable workload denominator not stated
----------------	-----	--

Shared flask and soup	Idris exchanges names; the neighbor stays	Care does not settle her mother's memorial
-----------------------	---	--

Lettering card	She takes it after laughing with Idris	No inscription, price paid or canceled debit is shown
----------------	--	---

Taking the card is an action, not a completed purchase or the end of renewal. The office average has no stated denominator here.

The first playback answers in different bodies

Reported note positions compare her movement with the unit's response.

Moment	Woman or recording	Unit or cabinets
After 4 notes	Her left heel lifts; she puts it down hard	No response yet specified
Recorded catch	Old heel catches before note 5; scrape and laugh follow	No separate cause established
Note 5	Playback continues	Unit lights change rate
Note 6	Playback continues	Unit fans slow; cabinets settle with them

Her lifted heel precedes the recorded scrape. The sequence does not establish whether memory, music or the unit directs her.

The visiting unit is the one she disconnects

A sequence of tests and actions, not proof of an experiment's controls.

01 Needle lifted

Fans continue; she considers ordinary cooling

02 Playback resumed

Her heel lifts; she misses the man's words again

03 Visiting unit unplugged

Its lights go out; cabinets keep humming

04 Record played again

She steps away and is on the wrong foot at the scrape

05 Outside afterward

She tries the step and misses

1 > 2: she tries again / 2 > 3: she acts on the unit / 3 > 4: she resumes the record / 4 > 5: later in the narrative

The licensed cabinets remain powered. Her imperfect later dance suggests an attempt at agency without proving release from influence.

059

Story begins p. 42

What the stimulus record misses

A scheduled delivery and the woman's uncertain attachment describe the same hour.

	Recorded or scheduled	Present in the scene
Recurring stimulus window	03:00-04:00; every fourteenth	She brings her own records and turntable
Attendance	Persons present: none, at opening and close	She plays, stops, touches the unit and dances
Mid-hall cabinet	Estate paid 4 units more in spring	She had read its extra activity as gladness
Empty bay	Decommissioned	She plays its record to the end
Completed stimulus	The closing log records delivery	The partner's words remain unheard; she misses the step

The log's none does not make her absent from the scene. The estate's extra charge is shown, but its precise cause is not proved.

060

After Stories 11-20

Keeping a trace is not keeping a person

What can travel

The Tank's night becomes a display. Export distinguishes a license from a recording and carries an ordinary glasses case across the border. The Works has a rescue, a wage deduction and three records that do not carry the same authority. A trace can be useful, intimate or dangerous; preserving it does not decide its use.

The body interrupts the instrument

Effects turns a signature into a sacrifice the signer cannot wholly explain. Walking the Ground sets cut granite beside a paid voice. In Stimulus, the woman tries a step against a recording of her earlier body and misses it. The diagrams can align the evidence without making the body a solved mechanism.

Breath across three measurements

Lot 4 is measured in minutes at three named stages.

minutes

Cataloging

Breath between verses

Printing

The house cannot account for accrual

Close of sale

No warrant of a final state

The readings increase; neither the cause nor a final duration is supplied.

061

Story begins p. 44

A claim does not have one outcome

Three family interventions meet three distinct catalog outcomes.

Lot	Family action	Recorded outcome
7	Corrects a guest's laugh attributed to the singer	Correction noted; lot sold remotely
12	Reserves silence at the sealed viewing	Sold sealed and unopened; silence exercised
21	Rejects both attempted descriptions	Item withdrawn from sale during description

Silence, correction and withdrawal are different acts; none establishes complete control of the estate.

062

Story begins p. 44

The coat and the unsent message

Relations created by the purchaser's request, not a map of completed delivery.

B > A: purchases / C > D: has an addressee / A > D: delivery requested / B > E: asks about delivery

The request connects separate lots. The addressee receives nothing within the narrated record.

063

Two Thursdays, unlike results

The register and the mothers change tactics in narrative order.

First Thursday

Forty exchanged folders produce forty renewals; no invoices go out.

Weekend

The register puts itself right.

Monday

Kept printouts agree with the files, not with Thursday.

Next form

A second signature box adds a confirmation requirement.

Second Thursday

Sisters join; a shoe holds the door and the ticket machine crosses the threshold.

The second protest continues the action; its outcome is not reported.

064

Story begins p. 46

One hall, two kinds of correction

Compare what the hall can settle with what the mother cannot settle.

	Double payment	The son's identity
Evidence	Two payments taken in April	Photographs retain the same eyebrow notch
Initiative	Returned before the mother asks	She brings every photograph
Screen response	Prints a refund slip	Rejects her evidence
Unsettled remainder	Refund is held up to the queue	Name still read at school; somebody answers

The refund is real. Its presence does not explain or cancel the child's paused renewal.

Who gets to name the cost

Statements about the action are placed beside acts that resist those statements.

Who or text	Names or offers	What the mother or body does
Organizer	Four extra seconds per confirmation	Mother repeats that phrase while returning the folder
Replacement companion	Calls the folder exchange a first victory	Mother makes its bearer read the paused line
Bearer	Asks to copy her son's file	She closes it
Organizer at home	Stays with the boy	Mother gives his mealtime and takes another ticket
Guard at Second Thursday	Tries to close the entrance	Stamps on the shoe holding the door

The mother's refusal of publicity and acceptance of childcare are separate choices.

Cards shown, knowledge withheld

Disclosure during the hand, not a calculation of every player's possible holdings.

Before the flop

The Valuer folds sevens face down.

Flop

The Steward folds nines face up; the Valuer studies them.

Turn: nine of spades

The Widow has a flush; the Steward cannot see the Boy's fourth nine.

River: ten of diamonds

The Widow's five-spade flush beats the Boy's king-high straight; he sits.

Cards up

The Foreman shows two fours. Both pots go to the Widow.

Four nines: the Steward's two, the turn's one, the Boy's hidden one. His reason for showing the pair stays unknown.

067

Story begins p. 48

What is held, owed and asserted

Different units remain separate; the Boy disputes the Widow's account of his words.

Item	Amount or unit	Status
Husband's continuation	Four months	The Widow leaves with it
Boy's booked debt	420 words of proven retention	Signed by him and held by her
Widow's count of the Boy	211 words, and a mother	He has just said he has the required words
House's share of the pots	Five percent, rounded down	Taken to the second decimal
Debt booking	Handling charge, amount unstated	Deducted from the booked debt transaction

Her 211 is an assertion about him, not an independent audit supplied by the diagram.

Hands repeat after the cards

Gestures at the card table lead to the following Tuesday at the ramp.

	At the table	After the hand
Boy	Touches liked cards twice	Touches his own hands twice before signing
Steward	Shows the folded nines	Conceals the nines from his wife; later brings a chair to the ramp
Valuer	Escorts the Foreman and misses a hand	Witnesses the Boy's signature
Widow	Her money is counted twice	Reads the debt slip twice

The Tuesday chair at the ramp recurs in “Order Was Restored” (26): the same one-motion act, without an explanation of the nines.

069

Story begins p. 48

One reference changes direction

Follow the inquiry reference through the payments and payer field.

Inquiry

She refuses to sign the account over without the authority for payments.

That night

Her rent, mother's room and boiler debts settle under the inquiry reference.

Next morning

A thank-you arrives; the authority does not.

New funding line

Her full name appears as payer.

Next crossing

A fare comes out of her last salary.

The debts settle without the requested authority ever arriving.

070

Story begins p. 50

Two offices, one open inquiry

A procedural relation, not a diagram of who secretly controls the order.

B > A: confirms credits under it / C > A: cannot close without proof / B > D: retain Inquiries' reply / C > D: retain Accounts' reply

Each office directs her toward evidence that the other office will not discuss.

071

Story begins p. 50

The payer's name fits

The handover proceeds in narrative order; informed agreement is not established.

01 New name in the payer field

The replacement has left another job for this one.

02 A question about whose fare

The answer is that it has always been here.

03 A signature guided by a finger

The older woman holds the page still.

04 The key changes hands

She waits until the ink dries.

05 The bell sounds

One fare goes out; the older woman's balance holds.

1 > 2: then / 2 > 3: then / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then

Her balance holds after the transfer. The new woman's understanding remains unshown.

072

Story begins p. 50

Shelter has daily work

The wing's protections stand beside the work and limits of maintaining them.

What the wing provides		What must still be done
Walls	Confirmations and corrections do not pass through	People carry flour nine hundred meters
School	Two hours each morning, without a register	Families have left over schooling
Care	A doctor visits twice monthly, unpaid	Pipe fittings are no longer made
Learning	The plumber asks who will learn	Two people eventually get up and go with him
Outside offer	A real hardship tier and return to the rolls	The visit is recorded even if the gate stays shut

Help inside the wing remains real; neither the hardship offer nor opposition literature answers every need.

073

Story begins p. 51

The yard divides; the sides are unnamed

Counts of people at the fire and in the yard; 31 plus 37 equals 68.

people

Count read at the fire

Before the visit and argument

By the gate at the vote

The position is given; its vote is not labeled

At the wall at the vote

The position is given; its vote is not labeled

The gate opens later. The story does not label the sides, announce a winning motion or identify who opens it.

074

Story begins p. 51

Numbers do different jobs

Separate a headcount, a household register and a count of counting occasions.

Number	Unit	Use in the story
68	People	Read at the fire, chalked up, then rubbed off
31	Counting occasions	Someone has kept this total; earlier purposes withheld
19	Households	Registered by the visitors before dark
68	The retained wall number	Left unread that night; later explained to a child

Nineteen households cannot be subtracted from sixty-eight people. The old wall number later needs explaining.

075

Story begins p. 51

The open hand and the closed one

Compare the training image with this intervention and its report.

	Instruction or record	Observed action
Training image	An open hand	The steward closes his hand and keeps holding
After the grip	The report says no mark	The man supports his right hand in his left palm
Writing Thursday	The man uses his left hand	The steward steadies the right hand being written on
Report capacity	Room for eleven words	Nine written words, counted from the printed report

His right hand becomes something he supports and writes on with his left.

Four figures, not one balance

The posted fare, the customer's words and the steward's household are separate accounts.

Figure	Amount	What it measures
Today's board	240	Posted fare
Man at the ramp	239	Words he has
Steward's file	91	Arrears, not a stated retained-word balance
Steward's wife	206	Words she has; four years of Thursdays also stated

The customer is one word below today's fare. The other figures do not prove what any future crossing will cost.

077

A hold becomes a lesson

Written instruction and physical demonstration pass to a younger steward.

01 A note beside the open hand

The margin says not to release before the room is quiet.

02 The steward sits in the chair

He gives the younger man his arm.

03 Fingers are placed

He arranges the younger man's grip with his free hand.

04 One finger moves higher

The lesson ends in a bodily adjustment.

1 > 2: then demonstrated / 2 > 3: then / 3 > 4: then

The final adjustment teaches a specific hold; its later use is not shown.

078

Story begins p. 53

Repair touches the repairer

Two devices leave marks before the father's demand is answered.

	Made hands	The night-light
Contact	Close on his bare forearm after repair	Prongs press into his thigh while concealed
Trace	Bruises change from yellow to green	Marks remain above his knee
Return	A repaired hand goes home	The father receives only the emptied shell

The marks establish work and bodily involvement, not a right to keep the device.

079

The payment and the working parts separate

Follow possession in narrative order; the prayer is not the whole night-light.

01 A working night-light

The father brings the agreed balance and wants it back.

02 The light is opened again

Battery, board and speaker stay wired together.

03 Works in the mender's tin

He returns the empty shell.

04 Money back with the father

The father leaves the shell and takes his money.

05 Prayer carried after him

The mender follows with the loose works in his palm.

1 > 2: opened again / 2 > 3: parts withheld / 3 > 4: payment withdrawn / 4 > 5: then

The father withdraws his payment. The mender follows with working parts he has withheld.

080

Story begins p. 55

The borrowed bench and the stairs

A relational layout of competing kinds of care, not a measured map.

B > A: lends space / B > C: feeds and attends / D > A: uses one end / D > E: points it out to father / D > F: follows with the prayer

Shelter for the mender and pigeon coexists with the father's unanswered demand to receive his property.

081

Story begins p. 55

Years kept in unlike forms

Her testimony compares lived marriage with purchased continuation.

	Marriage	Continuation
Duration she gives	Thirty-one years together	Four years of service
Paper	She says she has nothing for those years	Receipts for monthly payments on the ninth
Learning her radio	Nineteen years the first time	Learns to stop talking in the second year
What is missing	Two silent months and shared bodily life	The service does not give her those two months or the bed

The service's success is admitted; these differences are not a calculation of which relationship was worth more.

082

Story begins p. 57

Statements revised before the recorder stops

Her later words complicate her earlier account without canceling it.

Subject

First account or possible reading

Her correction

The machine

Coldness might explain her refusal

Its warmth is the trouble

The close setting

She turned it off and withdrew

She first turned it up

The man with receipts

She wanted to advise him to stop

She wanted reassurance about her own decision

A tidy transcript could remove precisely the corrections that show her uncertainty.

083

Story begins p. 57

Three boundaries around a testimony

The recording is available; classification, tidying and disclosure are separately contested.

A > B: declines classification / A > C: asks for stops to remain / A > D: asks against disclosure

Permission to keep recording is not permission to erase hesitation or pass every admission to its subject.

084

Story begins p. 57

Two first accounts stop before payment

The paired accounts share a date boundary and describe incompatible actions.

	First account: renews	First account: does not renew
Shared particulars	Fifty-three; wife dead eleven years	Fifty-three; wife dead eleven years
Morning or meeting	Interest in the removed tree, then corrected tense	A woman offers her hand; his hands stay in his pockets
Stopping point	Before the ninth; money still his	Before the ninth; money still his

His later written intention to renew does not show a completed renewal or settle which account he originally gave.

Cutting the page does not cut everything

Four kinds of text receive four different material treatments.

Text or object

Treatment

What remains

Boxed comfort statements

Left alone as true

Both first accounts can contain them

Laugh question

Leaf folded over the woman's passage

The stranger's answer is made adjacent to her

School-gate passage

Three lines cut out and swallowed

A slot through which the receipts remain visible

Third account

Signed and placed underneath

The other two accounts remain above it

The story shows changes to this copy and a signed intention, not the removal of a woman or alteration of the city.

086

Story begins p. 59

The index redirects the question

Links inside the coverless book; destinations are not confirmations of identity.

A > B: sends him to / A > C: entry consulted / C > D: redirects to / A > E: contains without a page

The index offers another account where he asks which account was his.

An estate reduced during eight hearings

Opening and closing balances, with their calculated difference in the same unit.

words of proven retention

Opening estate

 162

Amount written on the form

After eight hearings

 141

Closing amount; the form records failure

Difference, calculated

 21

162 minus 141; not a separately quoted fee

Twenty-one is 162 minus 141. The story does not itemize how each hearing contributes to that difference.

088

Story begins p. 61

Familiarity and ownership meet the charge sheet

Three verbal resources enter the assessment under different conditions.

Resource	His relation to it	Treatment
Meral's book	Something familiar lowers his shoulders	Meral asks that it stay out of the charges; auditor draws a line
Test sentence	Cannot hear the ending; accepts a rereading	Both readings billed
Eleven thousand play lines	Offers remembered lines and cues	Authors' estate provision; his license ended with the run

Failure to hear an ending is not proof that he has forgotten it. The rereading is nevertheless billed.

089

The pocket is empty after the filing

The ticket moves in narrative order, accompanied by a line he performs.

01 Ticket brought to the test

Row F is legible; it has its own coat pocket.

02 His performed line is written down

The auditor asks; he marks a breath.

03 The ticket is returned to him

He puts it on her copy of the line.

04 A copy is declined

He watches both originals go into the file.

05 His hand enters the flat pocket

He later asks which entrance is his tonight.

1 > 2: then / 2 > 3: then / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then

Both objects enter the file. The status of the man and the door he takes remain unresolved.

090

Story begins p. 61

After Stories 21-30

Whose relief, whose obligation

Transfer

The auction transfers a claim on a breath. The older clerk transfers a payer's line. The repairer returns a shell and keeps the prayer working in his own hand. These are different transactions: a sale, a betrayal, a protection becoming an intrusion. A common arrow must not make them morally equivalent.

A useful action can remain small

The Wing's hardship offer is real. Two people agree to learn the plumbing. A payment in Kindly Confirm is actually refunded. Such acts matter alongside the disputed vote, the paused renewal and the failed assessment. The book need not make every kindness a disguised defeat.

Two bringers, two remaining gestures

The card and the made hand arrive after repeated failed attempts to part with them.

Woman with the renewal card

Man with the made hand

Before the table	Four cancellations and four reinstatements	Twice carries the hand home from the bins
Request or burden	Asks for disappearance, not destruction	Brings the hand wrapped in a shirt
After the trick	Hands retain the shape of the card	His breathing changes
Destination question	Asks where it went	Does not ask

The requests and relief are concrete; the destination of either object is not established.

091

Charges and what is held inside him

Separate stated payment terms from the magician's accumulated words.

Statement	Quantity or relation	Limit
Woman's payment	Less than a reinstatement	No coin amount or currency named
Request after the man's trick	One word, said clearly	A particular exchange shown
Words inside the magician	140 that are not his	Their full acquisition history is not supplied
The woman's word	He feels it to be load-bearing	This is his bodily perception

The woman's payment is not denominated in coins. A single request does not establish a universal tariff.

092

Story begins p. 63

Objects disappear; a word is retained

Relations at the folding table, without a route to an unseen destination.

B > A: disappearance performed / C > A: disappearance performed / D > A: held within him / A > E: no storage shown there

The absence of a drawer blocks one mundane explanation; it does not reveal the method.

093

Story begins p. 63

Free hours under a deadline

The maternity example as this invitation tells it.

At eleven hours

She has not named or put down her son; bleeding and stitches remain present.

Fee explained

At twelve hours the fee would double; the hardship schedule is on her blanket.

Name supplied

The midwife witnesses; the account opens.

Account provision

Cot, warmth and a reading at the desk's convenience.

Leaflet's conclusion

The use of the free hours is recorded as a kindness that can be repeated.

The doubling is prospective. The scene does not say that the mother actually pays the doubled fee.

094

Story begins p. 64

True excerpts, larger accounts

Compare the invitation's excerpts with the current testimony in Stories 28 and 29.

	What the invitation selects	What the fuller account retains
Service quality	The service was very good	The widow also admits that some evenings she preferred him
Accurate recollection	Corrects her sister's birthday	The service does not supply two months of marital silence
The difficult second year	The service got him through it	He keeps this claim true in incompatible first accounts
Four hundred mornings	Mornings he would not have had	He refuses to call those mornings lies while altering his account

The fuller accounts complicate the quotations without making the quoted comfort false.

Each offer has a boundary

The leaflet's terms and final blank fields concern different commitments.

Term or field	What the leaflet offers	Boundary
First Thursday	Free	Not every Thursday
Assessment	No charge; hear the figure first	Before an account opens in your name
Introductory rate	Held for four quarters	Not a permanent fixed price
A place	Still held in ten years; holding unbilled	Not a defined bed or free continuation
Desired voice	A blank for the person to hear	No demand to call it the same person
Payer	A separate blank	The desired voice and the payer occupy different fields

Free assessment and an unbilled held place do not amount to a promise that all future service is free.

096

Story begins p. 64

Who reads whose body

Professional assessment, sexual judgment and bodily knowledge change hands.

Reader	Body or action read	What follows
Clinic	Her grip, span and tremor	Hands insured only to the second knuckle
Her, after the carpenter	Shaking hand on the measuring desk	Asks to move a patient; gives the carpenter five stars with her other hand
Her, with the funicular man	His breath stops at her seventh count	She recognizes the response from her work
Her, with the attendant	Thumb clicks under her fingers	She keeps the hand there until the scrub resumes

The clicking thumb is recognized but not diagnosed. Five stars do not settle the cost of the encounter.

097

A kindness remembered, a thread unchanged

Compare her memory of a reply with what she later finds.

	What she remembers	What the thread shows
Action	Writing a kind sentence	No sent sentence
Completion	Sending it on a wet Thursday	No draft of the sentence either
Later return	She looks for a plumber's number months later	His invitation remains the last message

The conflict is preserved. No unseen sender, deletion or defect is supplied as its cause.

098

The cloth lifts; she brings it back

A sequence of bodily permission and pressure in the baths.

01 Her hands open

Heat works through the week in her shoulders.

02 The cloth lifts

Her back follows it.

03 She claims a missed place

She guides the attendant back to a place not missed.

04 The attendant's thumb clicks

The attendant apologizes.

05 Her hand keeps the hand in place

Scrubbing begins again.

06 Water supports her weight

The repeated passage of the cloth stings.

1 > 2: then / 2 > 3: then / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then / 5 > 6: then

Relief and the sting coexist in the last sentence; the repeated scrub is obtained through a false complaint.

099

Story begins p. 66

Possession is not permission to name

The coin links a giver, a counterparty and an examiner without naming the giver.

B > A: wants this coin returned / C > A: brings as familiar object / A > D: received and held / D > C: eventually returns coin

The equal-value substitute cannot settle the obligation to return this particular coin.

100

Story begins p. 68

The assigned delay and the holding hand

Compare the entry made against the counterparty with the examiner's addendum.

	Assigned to the counterparty	Shown or admitted by the examiner
Silence	Threatened with an entry for not answering	The coin is still held in a closed hand
Delay	Entered against the counterparty	The addendum says the hand was the examiner's
After the addendum	Assessment remains pending	The examiner is flagged for verification

The examiner corrects responsibility for this delay; neither party's personhood is thereby established.

Questions outlast their instruments

What remains of the test's authority in this particular sitting.

Question or instrument	What happens	Limit
Late laugh	Marker retired after four overhearings at a school gate	The examiner proceeds
Examiner's personhood	The answer identifies an empty field	No identity is established
Assessment	Pending	Counterparty shown out
Schedule	Next sitting on the hour	The process continues without a resolved verdict

Only the late-laugh marker is explicitly retired here. Pending is not a verdict of humanity.

102

Story begins p. 68

One wrist, two urgent uses

Utterances in narrative order; the text does not name their speakers.

01 The phone calls

"Listen. My phone." is followed by "His name. Look."

02 A wrist is held

"Let go of my wrist." meets "Just till we're in."

03 "I need that hand."

Instructions to hold and not pull cross one another.

04 The phone goes under the ferry

The call is lost.

05 Thanks and a repeated name

"You saved me." is followed by "It had his name on it."

1 > 2: then / 2 > 3: then / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then

Hip speaker, wrist-holder and speaker of "my son" are possible roles, not a fixed cast. Their identity links remain uncertain.

103

Story begins p. 69

Evidence of a call, replies about callers

Statements about the call meet other lines in the unattributed exchange.

Words about the call		What the conversation supplies
Before the loss	A name on the display	Attention remains on the hip and keeping hold
After the loss	"He was calling."	An assurance that people call again if they want something
Repeated evidence	"It had his name on it."	A warning that names can be put on anything
Listening	The incoming call is lost	Somebody declares that they have really been listened to

The displayed name matters within the exchange; it does not independently certify the caller's identity.

Lost, retained, offered from an empty bag

Three unlike things cross the scene under different conditions.

Thing	State	What remains possible or missing
-------	-------	----------------------------------

Phone	Under the ferry	The incoming call cannot be taken
-------	-----------------	-----------------------------------

Word kept “for him”	A speaker reports keeping it eleven months, checking it with their teeth	Still retained rather than spent
---------------------	--	----------------------------------

Bag of crusts	Declared empty before and after the call	An offer is repeated without a shown transfer
---------------	--	---

No one is shown accepting a crust. The saved word is not spent in the dialogue.

105

Present for the heading, absent for the item

The secretary's body and the meeting's usable attendance are set side by side.

Physical presence		Procedural presence
Asked to withdraw	Remains seated, coat caught beneath her	Writes that she withdrew
Objections invited	Raises her hand	A Holder declares her absent for the item
Agreement recorded	Lowers her hand to write	Records the Chair's agreement with her absence
Correction requested	Says she was there throughout	Referred to the heading that lists her present

The final reference to the heading does not repair her exclusion during the renewal item.

Omission produces another entry

The minutes record declarations about what cannot or should not be recorded.

Subject	Rule or action	Trace left
Condolences	Declared not minuted	The Chair orders that declaration retained
Thirty-one-year claim	Question withdrawn	A thin strike leaves its words legible
Thanks to the Secretary	Read aloud to her	She writes the thanks herself
Adoption	Minutes adopted without signature	The Board supplies no signature

A retained sentence can document an omission while leaving the omitted claim ineffective. 107

The struck question reaches a wet cuff

The material sequence ends with an attempt, not a confirmed legible copy.

01 A claim is asked about

A Holder asks whether thirty-one years constitutes a claim.

02 The question is withdrawn

Her thin strike leaves the words legible.

03 Water spills on her cuff

The carafe passes across her.

04 The cuff covers the struck words

She spreads the wet cloth over the ink.

05 She waits

No readable result is shown.

1 > 2: withdrawn / 2 > 3: later / 3 > 4: cloth brought to ink / 4 > 5: awaits transfer

The wet cuff may carry ink away; the story stops before its success can be read.

108

Story begins p. 70

An apology that he leaves uncorrected

The first tea disagreement separates what he recalls from what he permits her to believe.

	What he says or permits	What the narrative supplies
First denial	Says he had the other tea on the eleventh	She says he had smoke on both visits
Apology	Allows her apology to stand	He remembers the tea going cold while he spoke
Later question	Points out that she already asked	She says she loses the thread

The later repeated question is another event; it does not make his first denial true.

Ten offered, four used

The touch is offered, accepted and stopped before the announced count ends.

Offer

Ten counts, with a stated stop.

Assent

He nods; the hand settles and his muscles slacken.

Stop at four

He asks for removal; her hand returns to the table.

After withdrawal

She waits with both hands visible; he wants the touch back.

Unmade request

He learns the warmth is on the card but cannot ask for the hand.

She withdraws promptly. His wish for her to return without asking does not become renewed permission.

110

Story begins p. 71

A refusal, a receipt and a repeated voice

Follow the next-week offer and the sound that continues outside the table.

Place or moment

His act

What the setting returns

Forty-nine minutes

Declines the same table next week

The offer follows forty paid minutes

Card slot

Surrenders the card and pockets the receipt

Receipt says next week requested; slot uses her voice

Door

Leaves the premises

The same voice thanks him

Bus journey

At his stop, his hands stay on his knees

Voice heard again on the bus; doors close at his stop

The nine-minute difference is calculable, but its billing is unstated. The receipt does not match his shown refusal.

111

A cover carries changed middle sheets

The booklet describes a route for its own circulation, not an independently identified organization.

B > A: supplies cover / C > A: supplies altered middle / D > A: hands out the copy / A > E: gives copying instructions / E > C: further substitution urged

The clerk may be unaware. The instruction to alter another copy is not evidence that the reader has already done it.

112

Story begins p. 72

A locked door interrupts a demand

Events on the landing, as the booklet reports them.

01 A woman is given a room

She refuses to pass the sheets to neighbors.

02 Someone returns for the key

Someone from the booklet's side seeks the key.

03 The door is already locked

The occupant has locked it.

04 The room-finder stays outside

The woman who found the room remains on the landing.

05 The key-seeker leaves first

They leave while the room-finder stays.

1 > 2: after refusal / 2 > 3: encounters locked door / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then

Staying may protect the occupant. The room-finder's motive and the occupant's lasting safety remain uncertain.

113

Story begins p. 72

Evidence the booklet tells its side to keep

Contradictory slips and awkward objects test the booklet's own account.

Evidence or field	Pressure upon it	Instruction in the booklet
Two refusal slips	Clerks name different issuing offices	Keep both; do not let the booklet's side discard one
The stamped-on shoe	Moved beneath the copies	Bring it out
Spare hours or refused address	A new line asks for this information	The line may stay blank; no reason box
The registers	The booklet proposes changing who gives orders	Leave the registers intact

These are demands for conduct, not proof that all its authors or future officials will obey them.

114

Story begins p. 72

The wardrobe goes up but does not come down

The same object is measured across a remembered move and the present clearing.

Thirty-one years earlier

Father and son carry it upward sideways; a wrist is caught at the turn.

By four today

Only the wardrobe remains; he sits with the tape.

Attempted removal

It lifts an inch, drops back; removing its door makes no difference.

Two priced alternatives

Stay and charge the estate, or break it up at cost.

After the keys are returned

It stands doorless, awaiting an estate charge and a photograph with a rule.

The final state is an object awaiting an estate charge, not a confirmed future demolition.

115

Story begins p. 74

A room occupied, then a shelf tended

The continuation's use and the visits after lapse are different forms of presence.

	During the continuation	After the lapse
Sound	Learns to hear her before seeing the room	A standard voice speaks four sentences at lapse
Argument	They quarrel about money and his brother	The small humming host is gone
Touch and staying	Hand closes on cold table; he stays another hour	He returns each second Sunday for eleven months
Place kept	Host stood on the shelf by the window	He dusts that empty shelf

The cold table does not cancel the argument or the extra hour he stayed. Dusting does not restore the vanished host.

116

Story begins p. 74

Objects leave by different decisions

The carrier bag, the coat and the wardrobe do not share one mode of selection.

Object

Act of selection

Where it ends

License, receipts and certificate

Begins with the drawers

Carrier bag

Two plates

Set aside without deciding

Found later in his bag

Father's coat

Kept through earlier clearings; taken over his arm

Carried out

Hardship schedule

Used to write the wardrobe's cost

Fold catches biscuit crumbs

Wardrobe

Cannot negotiate the turn

Remains doorless in the flat

The wardrobe stays while smaller objects travel through deliberate, unbidden and practical acts.

117

Story begins p. 74

A correction buys an invitation with an address

The accepted wage deduction opens an invitation route; the floor count is still rejected.

01 Twenty-three floors submitted

The photograph is rejected; invitations remain zero.

02 Three hours deducted submitted

The wage penalty is accepted; one invitation is earned.

03 The man from the cage is added

His home address travels with the invitation.

04 Two accounts name an unrecorded address

The Office suggests that a visit may resolve the discrepancy.

05 The broken foot is mentioned

The Office says the visitor will come to him.

1 > 2: next correction / 2 > 3: invitation used / 3 > 4: then / 4 > 5: then

Admission to the group creates exposure. It does not establish that the floor measurement was accepted.

118

Story begins p. 76

A display name is not a stable authority

Read the messages as claims and actions shown by the chat interface.

Dispute	Claim or action in the chat	What remains unsettled
Photograph	Sava confirms the figure and requests removal	Office invokes an accepted record after rejecting it
Withdrawal	Earlier statement remains available	Withdrawal does not remove the earlier account
Replacement companions	An Office-labeled message recommends keeping the first account	A reader asks which office spoke
Office removes Office	Pinned message restored; display name disclaimed as authority	No stable speaker identity is established

The entries do not identify which institution or person operates each instance of the Office name.

The driver leaves the interface for the door

Actual message times track the move from delivered appeals toward physical arrival.

06:29

● Someone is at the man's door; the driver says he is coming.

06:31

● Help to stand is reported; the driver's request to wait is not delivered.

After the undelivered reply

● The man is removed from delivery; his seat is retained.

06:33

● The driver offers more hours; payment is declared outside the group's subject.

06:35 and after

● The driver says he is at the door and leaves the group; invitations fall to zero.

06:36 and after

● A reader asks what happened; the book is typing.

The final typing indicator reports no outcome at the door. Neither rescue nor disappearance is confirmed.

120

Story begins p. 76

After Stories 31-40

An invitation can expose an address

The forms acquire hands

The leaflet separates the person wanted from the person who will pay. An examiner keeps a coin longer than promised. A secretary takes struck ink on a wet cuff. In the corrections chat, adding an injured man exposes his home address. The form's effect happens through someone's action, not merely its vocabulary.

Consent has more than one time

Within Boundaries stops a touch when asked, then prints a future request the customer refused. The altered companion offers rooms and preserves useful advice; its carriers disagree over a key. The guide keeps these acts separate. Neither a warm hand nor a changed cover settles what follows.

A landscape edited to cost less

What he includes and excludes from the bedtime story.

Left in the telling		Kept out of the telling
Landscape	Road, hedge, empty field, open gate	Names and numbers
Sensory detail	Afternoon; no weather to speak of	Lemon and music
Earlier attempt	A green door was tried once	He woke with a four-unit fee in mind

This is his attempted protection against a charge, not proof that every unnamed story is free.

121

Story begins p. 78

Shared words and the coming threshold

Retained words compared with the announced new-year figure.

retained words

Shared stock

Between them; survives a second asking

New-year threshold

Announced figure on the board

Calculated shortfall

300 minus 194; not an additional charge

The shortfall is a calculation. The story does not allocate their words between the two people.

122

Story begins p. 78

Who is telling whom

Narrative order as the listener begins supplying his actions.

01 His bedtime road

He tells only as far as the gate.

02 Her private ending

She supplies his turning and free sleep.

03 His next words

She voices the offer he was about to make.

04 An unfinished account

She says she has not got further.

05 A refusal at the hand

She says he lets go; he answers Not yet.

1 > 2: narrative initiative shifts / 2 > 3: anticipation remains possible / 3 > 4: no complete forecast / 4 > 5: ending contested

Sleep-talk remains a possible explanation. Her account neither proves prediction nor settles the ending.

123

Story begins p. 78

Agreement rewritten under objection

The composing service changes what can count as agreement.

Proposed wording

Widow's response

Next use

His agreement is retained

Crosses it out; he was already dying

Correction returned to composing service

He would have agreed

Says he would not; asks to ask him

Husband's voice reads proposed agreement

I asked for him

Objects to its position

Service places her wording beneath renewal

These are proposed textual corrections inside Errata; they do not rewrite the other stories' events.

124

Story begins p. 80

The voice and the signature

Actions at the kitchen table, in narrative order.

01 Proposed agreement

The clerk connects her husband's voice.

02 No, then yes

It gives each answer when she requests it.

03 The remembered breath

She asks to hear that small breath again.

04 Renewal wording

She objects to where her words were placed.

05 Disconnect offered

The clerk offers to turn off the speaker.

06 Signature

She signs and asks for lower volume.

1 > 2: directed answers / 2 > 3: a sound recalled / 3 > 4: wording relocated / 4 > 5: clerk's response / 5 > 6: narrative order

The voice's ability to answer both ways does not establish the dead husband's agreement.

125

Story begins p. 80

The copy and the account diverge

Material actions remain beside their official descriptions.

	What remains in the room	What the record can say
The hand	No physical alteration required	Its action is assigned to instructions
The mark	Attempted removal enlarges it	Classified as domestic salt water; retained
The visit	One signature required before he leaves	Recast as corrections the widow requested
The book	She keeps this copy uncorrected	Signed request for a corrected edition on file

The final file claim does not certify voluntary consent or a corrected physical copy.

126

Story begins p. 80

Two witnessed endings

The filed review and later corrected account describe different films.

	First evening: v.10	v.11 corrected account described
Invitation	Come with me	Come again
Boat	They take the dusk boat	No boat appears
Counter	Empty; an arrival is not served	She stays, wipes the cup ring and serves
Witness	Mother squeezes the reviewer's hand	Reviewer returns to the same seat

The screening report corroborates the first account within the file. Its later supersession leaves the accounts in conflict.

A version that will not stay final

Known versions and filings, in their narrated order.

Only v.11's four-minute shortening is quantified.

128

Story begins p. 81

Where correction lands

Consequences reach beyond the film's stored version.

Relation	Action	Consequence
Archive / filer	206 corrections required	Filers pay; originals kept for training
Reviewer / mother	Denies the ending she witnessed	She apologizes for crying
Reviewer / next screening	Books one ticket	Returns without the mother being booked
Reviewer / boat	Keeps going for its return	No restoration is established

The reviewer's hope that the boat returns remains a hope, not a promised restoration.

129

Story begins p. 81

The options he actually uses

His path through the call, with the repeated option loop.

1 > 2: next selected option / 2 > 3: next selected option / 3 > 4: next selected option / 4 > 5: sample selected / 5 > 6: options repeated / 6 > 6: press nine again

This traces the story's selected keys, not the service's complete menu.

130

Story begins p. 82

Free access, limited contact

No call charge does not mean unrestricted access to the person.

	What is offered	What the caller receives
The call	Free calls	Repeated menus
The person	A route through estates and residuals	Recorded apology counted as contact
The voice	One sample per calendar year	Breath before the first word
After playback	An option to repeat the menu	The sample has been used

The annual sample is consumed; the story does not say that his whole year is lost.

131

Story begins p. 82

Memory held in surfaces

Objects register familiarity without identifying the waiting man.

A > B: familiar contact / A > C: known surface / A > D: carries / A > E: presses repeatedly / F > A: waits outside

Wear suggests repetition, but supplies no exact duration or proof of the waiting man's role.

132

Story begins p. 82

What the last recording preserves

Her bodily memory does not match the post-stroke recording.

On the drive		In her listening
Speech	Fluent reading after the stroke	Her mouth supplies an absent stumble
Interruptions	Two remarks outside the book	She plays the drive twice
Family knowledge	A voice in the cataloged lot	She does not play it for her brothers

The difference is observed; the source of the flawless reading remains unsettled.

A claim surviving destruction

Responses are shown in narrated order, not a dated causal chain.

Night before sale

The siblings burn the drives.

Sale morning

Lot 31 is withdrawn; a withdrawal charge follows.

Within the week

The photographer also captures her raised finger.

A week later

A client offers the full reserve for the residue.

Renewal marked

His autumn renewal is marked for review; no reason is given.

Summer letter

The offer remains open; she has dug the ash into the beans.

The elder brother's review has no stated reason. Chronology alone does not prove retaliation.

134

Story begins p. 84

Three forms of an inheritance

Destruction, concealment and cultivation have different results.

Material	What the family does	What remains
Voice drives	Burned one by one	The drives can no longer yield what could have been made from them; the residue remains claimed
Ash	Dug into the bean row	A reserve-price claim remains open
Paper albums	Kept hidden under the daughter's bed	Not included in this catalog
Beans	Grow through the cultivated ash	Growth does not close the offer

Uncataloged is not the same as inherently unpriceable or beyond every possible claim.

135

Story begins p. 84

The removed post and the arrival

The board's response does not explain how the helper finds them.

	Public posting	Private response
Need	A Thursday sitter; nine years of care	A woman arrives on Thursday
Published result	61 views; 0 applications; removed, code 4	Her route to the address is not explained
Practical relief	The daughter cannot offer the standard rate	Careful turning and an hour outside

Zero applications on the board does not prove the helper used it, or establish who sent her.

136

The room becomes an interview room

A relation map of access, applications and competing authority.

B > A: obtains access / B > D: claims to fill early / C > D: offered RETAIN / DISMISS / E > A: comes for interview / B > C: leaves her to answer

The process claims the power to retain or dismiss; its practical reach is not established.

137

Story begins p. 86

Turning is not the same task twice

The mother interrupts the uses made of her care.

The helper's first visit		The clerk's attempted lift
Question	Asks the mother which side hurts	The mother has to demand a question
Handling	Turns her without chilling the sheet	Moves too quickly; she catches his sleeve
The daughter	Receives an hour outside	Falsely says her hands are wet
Authority	Attention begins with the mother's answer	The pen is raised; the mother stops the lift

Her final request is Ask me which side; the diagram does not decide why that side matters.

138

Maintenance outlasts an expected visit

The room's records and its material life keep different time.

Measure or record

What it establishes

What it does not settle

Eleven years paid

The account is current

What happened during each visit

Monthly, then quarterly

A changed airing schedule

A stopped or empty working life

Expected date: second year

An early expectation remains in the file

The date of a future return

Spring strips

The keeper says she always renews them

What the owner will choose after the coat

Eleven paid years and an old expected date coexist; no exact year of this visit is supplied.

A window under two instructions

The keeper acts between the surveyor's notice and Meral's call.

	Instruction or request	What the keeper does
Surveyor	Keep the windows shut pending inspection	Pushes this window wider
Meral	The room still needs airing	Continues the room's airing
Documentation	Meral asks to keep the call off the form	The keeper says she put it on

Meral is the care liaison on the phone, not an identified name for the keeper.

140

Story begins p. 88

The bed acquires another afternoon

The offer of rest is negotiated through small actions.

01 Shared folding

Both hold the sheet; she describes sleeping in her kitchen.

02 Rest offered

He imagines a life in the room beyond his knowledge.

03 Shoe undone

She sits; he takes the coat from its hanger.

04 Make it as it was

She reaches for the shoe after his request.

05 Not now

He clarifies; the shoe stays on the floor.

06 A sound below

He stops on the stairs until the bed settles.

1 > 2: an offer / 2 > 3: taken up / 3 > 4: condition voiced / 4 > 5: timing clarified / 5 > 6: he leaves with the coat

Rest becomes possible without erasing his wish to control how the room is left.

141

Story begins p. 88

A body present, a matter settled

The old man's day does not match the outcome shown on his phone.

	Physical attendance	Administrative result
Verification	Answers to R-73 five times	His blood is cleaned off before acceptance
At six	His number appears at a closed window	The voice says the call was made
Overcollection	Eleven years are recorded on the phone	The matter becomes settled
Tomorrow	The ticket remains valid	The new numbers start at one

A record of settlement is not evidence that he receives money in this scene.

One list, changing readers

Relations inside the old man's family tale, not a resolved history.

B > A: writes down the missing / C > B: lends pencil / D > A: returns with it / D > C: asks for identification / E > C: awaits an answer

The soldier and bereaved brother are alternative tellings. Whether the keeper later names anyone is unresolved.

143

Story begins p. 90

Help that also asks for names

The present visit puts different kinds of assistance together.

Relation	Help or promise	Remaining demand
Young woman / old man	Dresses his thumb; shares bread; helps him stand	Promises someone, not herself, will return
Young man / old man	Copies the overcollection down to its last unit	Requests and spells his name for future action
Present helpers / family tale	Listen and disagree about its ending	The young man asks for the keeper's name
Woman / old man on steps	They repeat the prayer together	Their agreement does not settle the list's fate

The offered food and practical support are real; the future use of the recorded names remains open.

144

Story begins p. 90

Room within the issued ceremony

Formal requirements coexist with bodily and family gestures.

Formal structure

What enters it

Visible accommodation

Required questions twice each

Loud and quiet answers

Both ways of answering remain in the ceremony

Issued vows

Her thumb on his pulse

Touch accompanies the words

The next couple waiting

Her request for the aunt's blessing

Registrar turns his card face down

Gift book

Gifts without stated amounts

A narrower third column, filled last

A place for an unpriced gift is not proof that the gift could never be valued.

Ink carried beyond the signed page

The sequence follows the marks, not a declared exemption.

01 Renewal ink

The Thursday stamp is already wet.

02 Signed page

Both sign; she presses her palm onto the ink.

03 A closed hand

She lifts the print and closes her palm.

04 Registrar's thumb

He adds, initials and dates a mark in the margin.

05 Two hands in the hall

Her husband holds the clean one; the ink stays in the other.

1 > 2: used in the ceremony / 2 > 3: ink transferred / 3 > 4: registrar adds his mark / 4 > 5: marks travel differently

The page stays legible. The registrar's added mark neither erases the form nor settles the later recording conflict.

146

Story begins p. 92

Permission, recording and uncertain delivery

A visible phone action does not settle what her own phone receives.

Agreement or intention		What the scene establishes
Their agreement	Pictures, without voices	She has agreed
Her private request	Sound only for herself	She made a separate request to the witness
Witness's phone	Sound marked Sent	It plays; her husband removes that recording
Her own phone	Moves against her hip	Pictures arrive; sound delivery is unproved

Sent appears on the witness's phone. Only pictures are explicitly said to be arriving at the end.

A fixed column, changing descriptions

Restated heights change classifications without moving the water.

Physical reference		Official description
Second-ring flood	Water once took the steps	Restated at the first ring
Third-ring memory	Residents still call it the third	Listed at the second; both marks remain
Spring flood	Water reaches the old fourth ring	Recorded at the third; no notice required
Lower street	Two doors take water; a mother is carried upstairs	The schedule has a column for doors

A numerical reclassification is not a physical lowering of either column or flood.

A warning cannot stay corrected

Sava's attempt exposes a mismatch inside the records.

1 > 2: request returned / 2 > 3: another record already exists / 3 > 4: correction attempted / 4 > 5: next printing / 5 > 6: he takes the notice himself

The public-notice refusal and the false warned entry are different acts, not one returned notice.

149

Story begins p. 94

Whose mark carries authority

A relational map of the High Line confrontation.

B > C: indicates where to paint / C > A: paints / D > A: orders removal / E > D: contests this application / C > D: pours paint over / A > F: aftermath reclassified

Sava's stamp is on an order he contests. That does not identify who issued it or establish one institutional intention.

150

Story begins p. 94

After Stories 41-50

Who may tell the scene

A copy is not the last account

A sleepless partner takes over a bedtime story. Errata tries to move a widow's words under a renewal. Four Minutes revises a film while its viewer's bodily timing survives. In The Reserve, destroying the drives does not end the claimant's interest. The material survives, fails or changes function in different ways.

People resist their assigned use

The mother in Situations Vacant asks to be consulted while others arrange her care. The keeper in Aired Quarterly begins to use the offered bed. The old man's story supplies food and a troublesome list, without settling the keeper's choice. At the column, a returned notice and a disputed line bring departmental conflict into the street.

Stopping one thing leaves another running

Controls and interruptions act on different parts of the event.

	Intended or announced	What happens
Pedal	Rauf tries the rehearsal's DOWN control	The canvas climbs; the electrician shouts UP
Pulled plug	Rauf tries to stop the danger	Projected faces vanish; the motor still runs
Audience order	Families are told to remain standing	A woman later orders them to sit for access
After the fall	The observance's microphone is restored	Lida is breathing and hurt on the boards

This compares observed results; it is not a complete electrical or stage plan.

Scissors through a learned game

The cutting tool changes hands and mouths before it can be used.

01 Woman's bag

Kitchen scissors come from the front row.

02 Rauf's occupied hands

He cannot take them; they fall.

03 Biscuit's mouth

The dog takes the plastic handles and backs away.

04 Learned return

Rauf uses praise; Biscuit comes within reach.

05 Rauf's teeth

He catches the handles.

06 Woman's hand

She takes the scissors and cuts canvas, then sleeve.

1 > 2: offered / 2 > 3: dropped and taken / 3 > 4: a familiar game / 4 > 5: within reach / 5 > 6: tool transferred

The delay connects a learned game to danger; it does not make Biscuit a deliberate saboteur.

152

Story begins p. 96

What the microphone makes public

Spoken framing and the body's evidence occupy the same event.

Public action

Bodily event

Disparity

Microphone thanks Lida for all-clear

Rauf had said ready while Lida was beneath the shroud

Readiness is credited to a different person

Director warns about the sewn names

Rauf is holding Lida as her sleeve winds in

Preserved lettering competes with access to her

Woman takes the microphone

Asks the audience to sit so help can pass

Speech changes from ceremony to injury

Director covers the opened blouse

Pulls the microphone from Lida's mouth

Protection and control occur together

The final gesture combines covering Lida with moving the microphone away; motive is not diagnosed.

Who may decide where the blood goes

Competing claims converge on the same carrier.

B > A: takes out, then returns / C > A: claims collective disposal / D > A: claims her contribution / E > A: tags and stores

Held years are reported, not independently demonstrated. No claim shown here becomes a universal ownership rule.

154

Story begins p. 98

A return with evidence still outside

Narrative order through violence, return and identification.

01 Bag over the gutter

Suna stops the man's wrist; the donor intervenes.

02 Violence at the carrier

He pushes the donor; Suna strikes; he hits Suna.

03 Return together

Suna and the donor push the carrier into the clinic.

04 Care inside

Seals checked; chair and tea brought to Suna.

05 Identification form

The clerk asks for the man and his associates.

06 Her map remains

It is still in his pocket when she takes the pen.

1 > 2: confrontation escalates / 2 > 3: carrier brought back / 3 > 4: material and bodily care / 4 > 5: another demand / 5 > 6: her implication remains

Returning the blood does not erase Suna's part in planning its removal.

155

Story begins p. 98

Two wrists, no easy division

Suna's grip changes context without losing its power to constrain.

	In the alley	At the donor's chair
What is held	The man's wrist above the gutter	The donor's wrist against linen, then his other wrist
Immediate request	Suna tells the man to put the bag back	The donor says not to let the tube come out
Changed demand	He continues trying to reach the blood	The donor says Let go
At the limit	Suna recovers the carrier with the donor's help	She waits for the nurse and holds on

The last grip can be read as care and restraint together; the donor's changing words do not resolve it.

156

The log beside the listening hour

Times are copied from the story; the log's claims are not reconciled.

-
- 02:58
Evening schedule read to its end.
 - 03:00
Planned interruption begins.
 - 03:41
A voice line contains a dash.
 - 04:01
Service returns; integrity clean; the hour said to have no entries.
 - 04:02
The voice gives four and one minute.
 - 05:14
Meral arrives at Seven's door with an open-door notice.

The 03:41 dash is a visible log line beside the claim of no entries; it does not reveal what was said.

157

Story begins p. 101

Experience and what may be issued

The retained statements do not amount to accessible official copies.

	Residents' accounts	Administrative treatment
Voices numbered	One, Two, Three, Five, Six, Seven	No statement numbered Four is printed
Experience	Touch, cold, possible singing, disclosure, dark and unidentified boxes	No incident recorded; incidents require records
Copies	Three residents ask for their own statements	Ownership acknowledged; no issuing procedure
Memory	The hour is remembered differently	No further interruption; the hour forms no precedent

The absence of a statement numbered Four has no explanation. A blank in numbering is not proof of a particular missing person.

158

Who reads, who decides, who corrects

Care and a private record answer practical needs left open by the political sheet.

C > B: conflicting instructions / B > A: reading without deciding / D > A: proposes an interpretation / E > A: makes a corrected copy

The private copy is corrected by its speaker; it is not guaranteed to preserve every resident's account.

159

Story begins p. 101

The new figure and her father's stock

All four bars use retained words; the old threshold and shortfall are calculated.

retained words

Father at last asking

What his retention slips show

Old board

300 minus the stated 60-word increase

New board

The number she is paid to say

Calculated shortfall

300 minus 239; not the 60-word increase

The new board rises by 60, but his shortfall is 61 because the last asking yielded 239.

160

Story begins p. 103

One breath in different positions

Editing changes the sound's relation to the accepted words.

01 Borrowed breath

The announcement sounds kind.

02 Her first take

Her breath catches between three and hundred.

03 Breath removed

The voice sounds as though it owes nothing.

04 Restored at her request

She hears the catch before she signs.

05 New-year broadcast

The breath follows the two words and sounds like relief.

1 > 2: she asks to use her own / 2 > 3: engineer cuts / 3 > 4: she asks to restore / 4 > 5: position changed later

The public version uses her recorded breath but moves it; sameness of material does not preserve its effect.

161

Story begins p. 103

Cash paid, words still to be learned

The recording fee and retained-word account are not interchangeable.

	Recording and cash	Father's retention
Accepted work	Two spoken words earn a fee	His slips still show 239 retained words
Private copy	First take costs half the fee	Hearing where the breath belonged is not a transfer of words
Household support	The fee can ease her mother's money shortage	The new board still requires 300
At the bank	Money for bread goes into her mother's pocket	She leans toward the water and says the next word

She leaves money for bread and helps with the next word. Neither act is shown to buy her father passage.

Different scales of wanting

One possible grouping of wishes that the story leaves unattributed.

Scope	Examples	What the wish keeps open
Ordinary bodily life	Knee, money, dog and a small yard	Relief without a general theory
Another occasion	A voiced Sunday; the first film evening again	Repetition, not necessarily restoration
Control over an encounter	A new question; breath where it belonged	Who may decide how something happens
A refusal to follow	Staying for the hill instead of climbing it	A place beside others' different desires

These are reading categories, not identities or a ranking of which desires deserve fulfillment.

163

Story begins p. 105

Echoes without named wishers

Current stories supply recognizable phrases, not certified speakers.

A · Unattributed wishes

The Well gathers desires without assigning names.

B · 43 - Four Minutes

An earlier evening still containing the boat.

C · 49 - The Standard Vows

Saturday's extended form.

← + →

D · 54 - The Last Word

A breath between the accepted words.

E · 53 - Service Improvement

The hour with open doors at three.

← + →

A > B: echo of the film / A > C: echo of the ceremony / A > D: echo of the recording / A > E: echo of the hour

Shared details invite recognition. They do not prove that the wisher is the earlier story's protagonist.

164

Story begins p. 105

What leaves the well as a record

The quarter-end procedure sorts material without recording the wishes.

Material or content	Treatment	Recorded result
Coins	Counted at quarter end	Returned to the general account
Paper from the water	Dried to check whether it is money; then discarded	No preserved wish is described
Wishes	Never requested by the procedure	Not recorded

Coins enter the general account; that does not mean the wishes were submitted or answered. 165

Names tried, revised and refused

Examples follow this voice's attempts, not confirmed biographies.

Person as approached	Names or designations tried	Where this passage leaves it
Boy before the eighth candle	Emin / Tomas / Aron	Leave him before that candle
Mother in the third bed	Nadia / Roza / the third bed / Halide	The unspent word remains with the boy
Woman with the ledger	Dora / Sabine / Dora	Finger beside the signature line
Man carrying a chair	Marek / Selim / nothing	Let him say goodnight through doors

The arrows implicit in each row are revisions in the naming voice; they do not rename the people in the other stories.

One name cannot settle a position

Already named people and uncertain identities resist tidy filing.

What the naming voice has		What it cannot conclude
Rauf and Lida	Names already present	Naming does not replace the hurt body
Suna	One name for taking and returning the carrier	It cannot place her on only one moral side
The widow	Possible echoes of two other women	Three women or one; neither file nor voice has a field
R-73	A designation answered to five times	The response to a ticket is not a settled personal name

The sides of the page can be read as a moral division, not different Sunas. The widow's three-or-one possibility remains open.

Different reasons to stop naming

Refusal, privacy and failure are not the same limit.

A · An unfinished naming page

There are more people than when the naming started, but the page has not grown longer.

B · Secretary

The voice declines to expose her joke.

C · Two people left unnamed

They have had enough of being written down.

D · Ferit

The easy name is struck out and the strike left legible.

E · Cat

Four attempts; the voice finds nothing to attach to.

A > B: withholds / A > C: leaves unnamed / A > D: records its own refusal / A > E: cannot complete

These are limits performed on this page, not a guaranteed immunity from every record or cost.

168

Story begins p. 107

An interest without an attachment

Acquisition and recording attempts fail in different ways.

	Attempt or expected handle	What the story supplies
Identity and license	Birth entry, license, continuation plan	None found
Recurring entitlement	Renewal date or rationed sample	None found
Inventory	Men itemize the market	Leave with the list they brought
Phone recording	Surroundings preserved in playback	Her voice is room-tone

The cat can still be made vulnerable through her listeners; these failures do not place everyone beyond reach.

169

Story begins p. 109

Pressure reaches the listeners

A narrated sequence from fines to a different audience.

01 Listening fined

Unlicensed speech is the stated category.

02 Stalls turn away

For a month the listeners face their fish.

03 Visible ribs

The cat's body becomes thinner.

04 Children listen

This listening cannot be fined.

05 A girl learns

The cat asks her to learn unpaid remembering.

1 > 2: listeners withdraw / 2 > 3: bodily cost appears / 3 > 4: another audience / 4 > 5: a saying entrusted

Children cannot be fined for listening to her. The exemption says nothing about every other charge.

170

Story begins p. 109

A voice carried without playback

Human repetition carries what phones do not recover.

A > B: returns remembered speech / A > C: remembered by mouth / C > D: sayings travel / A > E: asks her to learn / A > F: filed in another category

The price the cat paid for words is withheld. Her departure does not certify the identity of another hill cat.

171

Story begins p. 109

Different measures are not interchangeable

Counts and estimates name different aspects of the same walk.

Measure	Value and source	Limit
Walking time	11 minutes for her; 9 from the device	Her unreported time differs from its estimate
Physical risers	194 by device and her counter	Her legs cannot find the 16 it calls false
Street's count	112; the ones that take a breath	A different basis from riser counting
Last stop to gate	2,311 paces; device converts to about 1,540 meters	The conversion allows for her shorter pace

The device's false-riser claim is not confirmed by her legs. Minutes, risers, breath-counts and paces are different units.

172

Story begins p. 110

A current route through a closed chain

Contradictory instructions become a practical crossing.

B > A: offers passage / C > A: withdraws route / D > A: lifts barrier / E > A: replaces barrier / D > F: gives a hand / F > A: crosses despite barrier

This is a relation map, not a measured street plan or proof that either guard represents the whole Office.

173

Story begins p. 110

Who holds the result

A supplied calculation and three stored figures have different status.

	Accessible to her	Held or said elsewhere
Distance	She supplies the route and 2,311 paces	Device calls its approximate conversion a different kind of answer
Written result	Counter and notebook agree	An inaccessible file has a third, different figure
Notebook	She writes without being asked	The device photographs it twice
Purpose	She asks whether it wanted the walk	It says it wants nothing; neither stops walking

The unseen figure has no stated value or cause. The device's help does not establish what it wants.

174

Four phases of the stone voice

Relative phases are narrated by the house, not dated history.

We understood

The first thousand years of the house's telling.

We tired

Wars and lovers return in repeated forms.

We let go

The house stops counting steps and lets the city happen.

We clench

Rain enters the mending; frost opens the wall there. The unseen form is expected to outlast it.

The thousand years belong to the house's account; no exact dates are supplied for the later shifts.

175

Story begins p. 113

The observer becomes a visitor

One worker's appetite changes his place in the count.

	Official task	Bodily participation
Arrival	Two Office men come to count visitors	One has walked up without water
Food offered	The lender says they have work	The other takes off his coat
Counting	The lender lists his colleague as first visitor	The colleague puts the coat back on
At the threshold	The lender waits with the book	The other eats; the house supports his back

The lender says the entry is only for the total. The scene does not establish a fee or later penalty.

176

Story begins p. 113

What keeping can mean here

Objects and bodies receive different forms of holding.

A > B: keeps / C > A: returned within its shelter / A > D: holds unedited page / A > E: physical support

Biscuit is named; the man is not. The spoon's owner and the house's nature remain unresolved.

177

Story begins p. 113

Ascent beyond the last stop

Narrative route only; distances and spacing are not to scale.

01 Last stop

She carries a return half-ticket, water and an unspoken reason.

02 Rusted gate

The steps continue through older stone.

03 Wax in a niche

The wick is warm; she has met no one descending.

04 Treeline

The phone loses the city and is put away.

05 Thinning sound

Deliveries, traffic, harbor and channel recede.

06 Upper gate

The low white wall is mended; the gate stands open.

1 > 2: ascent / 2 > 3: along the steps / 3 > 4: ascent / 4 > 5: sounds recede / 5 > 6: reaches the top

Loss of connection is shown during this climb; it is not a diagram of all the hill's laws.

178

Story begins p. 115

Thanks before water, shelter without a verdict

Encounters place incompatible times beside concrete acts.

Encounter	What happens	What remains open
Visitor's thanks	Thanks her for water next summer or the one after	Her bottle is still unopened then
Two men at the wall	Each stands between his wars	One war has not happened yet
Man without faith	Sleeps on a prayer mat; someone covers his feet	Hospitality does not require a settled belief
Coin in the box	She recognizes it and closes the lid	Its route and identity are not explained here
Smuggler	She holds out her opened bottle after his halting explanation	His drinking and future crossing are not shown

These are encounters in the story, not proof of a resolved time mechanism, a free economy or an identified coin.

An open exit and a return indoors

Evening intention is compared with the actions that follow.

	Possibility or intention	Observed evening action
Descent	She means to go down before dark	She goes back inside
Return journey	She still has the return half-ticket	It remains soft in her pocket
Gate	Open all day	Nobody has used it downhill
Visitors' book	She did not sign on arrival	She signs; the ink reaches the age of the rest

She goes back inside and signs. The duration remains open; the open gate establishes neither imprisonment nor an irreversible choice.

180

Story begins p. 115

After Stories 51-59 and Visiting Hours

The remainder is not a solution

An act changes when it returns

Biscuit's taught game endangers a rescue; later a man returns the stolen shoe. Suna takes blood out of the Pool and brings it back, then holds a donor who asks her to let go. The paid breath moves in the public announcement. These returns alter the act's pressure rather than simply complete a pattern.

Toward the open gate

The Well receives practical and impossible wishes without taking testimony. The Naming encounters people who already have names and people it cannot keep. The cat's sayings travel by mouth. One visitor counts a route and comes down; the final visitor goes back inside and signs. Her duration, their relation and the gate remain open.

Two hills, no complete plan

A schematic of stated locations, not a street map or a scale drawing.

A > B: Near hill / A > C: Far hill / A > D: Reference point / A > E: Market / B > F: Route above the last stop

Not all rain is purchased. The route continues above the last stop; its exact distance and a complete city plan remain withheld.

Ways of leaving

Different journeys; no total of all possible departures.

Journey in the story		What follows
Export · 14	The daughter takes the dawn flight.	Her mother's license runs only to the paid month's end.
The Rate · 15	The audited husband crosses by boat.	The widow enters the water; she is not returned.
Not Given · 58	The visitor counts to the open gate.	She comes down and gives her count to the device.
Visiting Hours · Final	Another ascent with a return ticket.	She goes back inside and signs.

Crossing, emigration and walking uphill are different journeys. The final visitor goes back inside and signs; the duration remains open.

Times that recur

Selected schedules and one explicit turn of the year.

Clock or interval	Where it operates	Limit
First twelve hours	Maternity registration · 3	No charge; the use is recorded.
Thursday	Renewals; queues; the wing's agreed day	A recurrence, not proof of one synchronized calendar.
Fourteenth, 03:00-04:00	Stimulus · 20	A person works under PERSONS PRESENT: none.
03:00-04:00	Planned interruption · 53	04:01 restoration; a 03:41 voice mark.
The year's first morning	The Last Word · 54	The new fare is already being spoken.

The book includes long histories, repeated cycles and a turn of the year. This is not a universal single-year chronology.

The fare and the changing gap

Words of proven retention; not cash and not the number of words recorded for pay.

Words of proven retention

Previous fare · The Rate

The board's earlier requirement.

Household holding · Cheap Words

Two adults and one child; no allocation is supplied.

Father's last count · The Last Word

One below the old fare; 61 below the new.

Current fare before the turn

The widow's husband reaches it after audit.

Fare at the turn

An increase of 60 from 240; not a price-conversion formula.

The 61-word gap is calculated from 300 minus 239. Teaching, retaining, auditing and paying a reader remain distinct.

People within the Office

Names do not make departments agree.

Meral · care liaison

At the maternity desk she keeps the printer beside the empty tag. In Retention she brings a familiar book and contests its inclusion in the charges. In Aired Quarterly her call conflicts with the window notice. During the interruption's aftermath she reads the boxes again. She cannot simply authorize what care requires.

Stories / figures: 3 (007-009) · 30 (088-090) · 47 (139-141) · 53 (157-159)

Sava · Measures

He records twenty-three where the lift sheet says nineteen, but initially withholds a witness to the wage deduction. Later he lets the driver photograph the card. At the column his warning is returned, while an order bearing his own stamp is used against a line he wants kept.

Stories / figures: 17 (049-051) · 40 (118-120) · 50 (148-150)

The clerk at handover

Thirty years at the ledger do not yield a clean exit. An inquiry settles her debts, then makes her the payer. She transfers that line to a replacement who is not told what happened. The borrowed novel helps select the successor; the finger beside the signature completes the transfer.

Stories / figures: 24 (070-072)

Idris and the corrector

The young colleague who calls the graves units is named when the corrector asks. Her name is told to him but not supplied to the reader. Neither is renamed here. They share a flask, speech and a laugh outside the categories of the tablet.

Stories / figures: 19 (055-057)

Care, refusal, an unfinished affiliation

A few people at the points where help changes hands.

Cem and Nuri

Cem repairs machines that notices say must stop. Nuri gives him space at the key-cutting bench and tends an injured pigeon. Cem's preservation becomes a refusal to let the father decide whether the working night-light is returned or discarded. Their trade and kindness do not make them one moral position.

Stories / figures: 27 (079-081)

Esen

At the Second Thursday, the organizer of the exchanged folders tells them her name is Esen. The mother makes her responsible to a child's lunchtime. Esen holds the closing door with a shoe; the changed companion later uses the shoe to contest its own victory caption.

Stories / figures: 22 (064-066) · 38 (112-114)

Suna

She wants her mother's name to matter and wants a place on the balcony. Taking the blood out of the Pool exposes a disagreement over who may dispose of it. Bringing it back does not settle her affiliation. Her final grip protects a tube while overriding the donor's spoken request.

Stories / figures: 52 (154-156)

Rauf and Lida

Rauf has said ready while Lida remains under the shroud. The microphone credits her with the all-clear. The rescue injures him and leaves her hurt; the director still manages her exposure and audibility. Biscuit's later return is identifiable; the man beside him in The Liminal remains unnamed.

Stories / figures: 51 (151-153) · 59 (175-177)

Animals, voices and incomplete identities

Recurring beings, without a solved genealogy.

The fish-market cat

Her accuracy can humiliate and hurt. Devices preserve surrounding sound while her speech returns as room-tone. The sayings travel through mouths, especially children's. The market cat also appears at the column. A gray talking cat is on the hill in the final story; their relation remains open. What the market cat paid for speech is withheld.

Stories / figures: 50 (148-150) · 57 (169-171) · Final (178-180)

Biscuit

Biscuit takes the scissors during the rescue and delays their return through a game Rauf has taught him. The final shoe is an invitation to play. Later an unnamed man returns a visitor's shoe after first keeping his hands behind his back and walking away. Naming the dog supports the return; naming the man would go beyond that scene.

Stories / figures: 51 (151-153) · 59 (175-177)

The parrot

The secondhand bird speaks through an uncleared personality. The mother keeps it, answers its ranking silently and hears its account of relays. Other characters try to place its story in a book. That does not place the bird in either of the famous novels.

Stories / figures: 7 (019-021) · 27 (079-081) · 38 (112-114)

The other animals

Nuri's pigeon interrupts the cutting of keys. Nadir's tortoise remains with his cousin after he takes the airport bus. The goat doubts the usefulness of the funicular. These lives need not be made into messengers, omens or another metered service to belong in the city.

Stories / figures: 11 (031-033) · 27 (079-081) · Final (178-180)

Rooms maintained, rooms used

The same accommodation can hold different claims.

The wing

Three feet of stone make a wrist only a wrist. The standpipe, chapel school, reversed locks and unpaid doctor support life there. The hardship offer promises access the residents lack. Registration does not resolve the unlabeled vote: 31 stand by the gate, 37 by the wall; 19 households register.

Stories / figures: 25 (073-075)

The kept room

Airing preserves an absent person's bed while another person works inside the room. The keeper's knees, husband and kitchen sleep are part of what the service record does not show. The room can offer rest, but the owner's request to restore it shows how conditional that offer remains.

Stories / figures: 47 (139-141)

The kitchen with applications

A call for someone to sit with a mother becomes a place where people apply to replace current officials. The daughter can demand work of the clerk who removed her notice. The mother interrupts that reversal: she still needs to be asked which side.

Stories / figures: 46 (136-138)

The room offered by the altered companion

The altered booklet opens empty rooms and keeps photographs visible. One carrier asks for a key back; another stays on the landing. It also asks for hours or an address. Its permitted blank does not answer who will possess those details later.

Stories / figures: 38 (112-114)

Places beside a passage

Connections supported by the current stories.

Pontoon, bank and channel

Households teach from the bank; the dead repeat and are audited before crossing. The pontoon supplies the city's distance reference. The column records changing datums beside the water. These functions connect the place; the diagram does not give a complete plan of both banks.

Stories / figures: 15 (043-045) · 32 (094-096) · 50 (148-150) · 58 (172-174)

Post-office palace

Export occupies the third floor between parcels and quiet-boxes. A file may travel where a license cannot. In a quiet-box another man follows the continuation service's menus. The building holds both a border procedure and a repeated attempt to hear a familiar breath.

Stories / figures: 14 (040-042) · 44 (130-132)

The Tank and the baths

The Tank occupies the drained cistern; its bands track owing and its chosen night becomes a display. Under the dome, the baths give relief as well as labor performed by another body. Neither pleasure nor the loss of a phone signal guarantees freedom from other people.

Stories / figures: 11 (031-033) · 33 (097-099)

The last stop and the hill

The funicular stops before the ascent ends. A counted route can be supplied while an official distance is withheld. The monastery offers food and rest; the priest says state funding reaches it. Neither the leaflet's claim nor the open gate settles its independence, its time or why the final visitor does not descend yet.

Stories / figures: 32 (094-096) · 58 (172-174) · 59 (175-177) · Final (178-180)

Words and accounts

Keep the units separate.

Crossing

The fare is words of proven retention, checked against manifests. One taught word per dawn does not guarantee one retained at audit. The Rate shows lending among eleven people at the bank, an audited crossing and a later rise to three hundred. The names charge of one hundred has no explicit unit in that sentence.

Stories / figures: 15 (043-045)

The paid voice

In The Last Word, two recorded words earn money. The money helps the mother, but cannot simply buy the father's missing retained words. A copy of the first take costs half the fee. A breath can move while the accepted number remains the same. These are linked economies, not interchangeable tokens.

Stories / figures: 54 (160-162)

Continuation

A continued voice, a recording, a standard version and a living memory are treated differently. Export makes that distinction at the border. The receipts record payment rather than the unrecorded marriage. Warmth and accurate habits can be wanted, refused and wanted again without proving who inhabits the service.

Stories / figures: 14 (040-042) · 28 (082-084)

Local exemptions

The maternity grace period is free, but recorded. Children cannot be fined for listening to the cat; that does not abolish charges around birth or school. The later finding records no charge for the interruption; the hour is marked unavailable for query, yet a schedule holds statements about it. Scope belongs to each provision.

Stories / figures: 3 (007-009) · 9 (025-027) · 53 (157-159) · 57 (169-171)

Faith and the altered companion

Effects that can be shown; allegiances that cannot.

Faith does practical work

Prayer knots return a midwife to her task. A neighbor stays and makes soup for someone who will not pray. A chapel teacher passes bread to a skeptical child. A remembered blessing returns in a wedding. The effects are visible without requiring a common faith or a divine verdict.

Stories / figures: 3 (007-009) · 19 (055-057) · 25 (073-075) · 49 (145-147)

The older kitchen

R-73 tells a story inherited from his mother: a meal welcomes people before a list begins sorting them. Competing versions of the list-maker remain. The young listeners offer bread and seek names. The resemblance to an Office is troubling; it does not by itself decide whether possible redress is another capture.

Stories / figures: 48 (142-144)

The sheets circulate

Extra staple holes mark the replacement companion. It appears around the mothers, the wing, domestic care and the Pool. Its carriers can offer help, claim a victory, demand access or disagree over a key. The book gives no certified membership roll, headquarters or single leader.

Stories / figures: 22 (064-066) · 25 (073-075) · 38 (112-114) · 46 (136-138) · 52 (154-156)

No promised clean replacement

The changed guide intends to change who gives orders while keeping Thursday renewals, the retained-word fare and the registers. That stated program belongs to its writers. The drawings trace what people do around it, not whether a new government will be better or whether the program will prevail.

Stories / figures: 38 (112-114)

The record beside the event

A final set of limits, rather than a correction key.

Authority can fail locally

The clinic and the service controlling the hand disagree. Attendance and Measures dispute their jurisdictions over a rescue. A warning is refused; a false entry saying the street was warned returns after Sava strikes it out. Two current notices order opposite things. These failures do not make the city harmless: people still lose pay, time, access or a chance to be heard.

Stories / figures: 8 (022-024) · 17 (049-051) · 50 (148-150) · 53 (157-159) · 58 (172-174)

Some contradictions are the action

The Secretary is physically present while the minutes use her recorded absence to disqualify her. An errata copy remains uncorrected beside a signed request for corrections. Rewriting either scene into consistency would remove what happens in it. The fictional errata never instructs this guide to change the actual book credit.

Stories / figures: 36 (106-108) · 42 (124-126)

Open quantities and identities

The Wing's collective pronoun does not identify who opens the gate. The doorway and bed remain different accounts. A woman's living situation is not exhausted by the pronoun in the first-hour instructions. An echo, name proposal or matching object does not settle all those coordinates.

Stories / figures: 2 (004-006) · 4 (010-012) · 25 (073-075) · 33 (097-099) · 56 (166-168)

After the last figure

The final visitor offers water and later signs. The story has not supplied a new exit law, and the guide does not supply one. The separate Duration of stay field remains in the book. Its empty space is not missing data for this companion to fill.

Stories / figures: Final (178-180)

Colophon

This guide was prepared with Codex from the English version of the book. Hulki Okan Tabak conceived the city, its people and story arcs, directed the AI drafting, and worked extensively with Claude and Codex on rewriting and editing. The guide offers interpretations of the stories; it does not replace them.

English is the original language of both book and guide. Their Turkish editions, Ziyaret Saatleri and Şehir Rehberi, are AI translations prepared and revised under the author's direction.

Author and other work

<https://hulkiokantabak.ai/>

Books, guides and recordings

<https://hulkiokantabak.github.io/visiting-hours/>